Double hearings for Reading Light

Two hearings will be held next week regarding the rates charged by the Reading Municipal Light Dept. (RMLD). One is a hearing called by the RMLD to take comments on its new rates, which went into effect June 1. This hearing is scheduled for Wed., June 12 at 7:30 p.m. in the Lecture Hall of the Reading Memorial High School.

The other hearing begins on Tuesday morning, before the Mass. Dept. of Public Utilities (DPU) in Boston. This hearing was called as a result of petitions brought by the Town of Wilmington and the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, asking for investigation into the rates and practices of RMLD, and a town petition which seeks to stay the rates at their previous levels.

That hearing will be in the Saltonstall Office Building in Boston, and may take several days to conclude.

The RMLD rate changes, announced April 23, would do several things. Residential customers would have to pay a $2.22 per month billing charge. A surcharge would be added for summertime use of more than 250 kw per month, or over 500 if a customer had an electric water heater. There would also be a one cent cut in the fuel adjustment charge.

Fireworks raid

There were so many fireworks in a Lawrence Street home that police hired a semi-trailer to haul them away. Police executed a search warrant on Friday at the home of Thomas R. McArdle 3rd of 77 Lawrence St. and seized more than 100 cases of fireworks, estimated to be worth $30,000. McArdle was arrested on four charges. With Chief Bobby Stewart watching, Officer Robert Shelley, Det. Sgt. George Shepard and Deputy Chief Bernard Nally load cases of fireworks into the truck. For more details, see the police log on Page 18.

June 12 meeting on hazardous waste cleanup

On Wednesday evening, June 12, Reading and Wilmington citizens will have the opportunity to discuss the current plans to clean up the Woburn hazardous waste site with officials from the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE). State Rep. Geoffrey Beckwith announced this week.

The public meeting has been set for 7:30 p.m. on June 12, in the meeting room of the Reading Public Library, 64 Middlesex Ave., Reading, said Beckwith, who arranged the meeting after consulting with a number of concerned community residents and the Reading Hazardous Waste Committee.

Present at the public session will be Richard Leighton of the EPA and Robert Cagney of DEQE. They will outline last month's $12.8 million proposal to clean up the Woburn toxic waste site, cause of the so-called Woburn Odor, and cited by the EPA as one of the worst dumps in the nation.

Stauffer Chemical Company, one of the firms responsible for the site, has offered the plan after working out the details with both environmental agencies.

The June 12 meeting is a crucial part of the public input process. After listening to the presentation, all interested citizens, including those from Reading and Wilmington, will be free to ask questions and comment on the clean-up proposals.

"We all have a stake in crafting a final proposal that answers all our health and safety concerns," said Beckwith, who represents Reading, North Reading and Wilmington in the House of Representatives. "It is important for everyone to participate, and to join in the effort to lobby for a satisfactory clean-up plan."

Elderly housing units hinge on septic system

The Wilmington Housing Authority (WHA) is awaiting a final engineer's report on the Deming Way septic system to see if the new elderly housing units can be built at that site, it was reported at their Monday night meeting.

According to Executive Director Lillian Buckley, the engineers have said, informally, that the septic system is inadequate and it is "not feasible" to expand it. WHA members will wait for the final report before making a decision on where to locate the new units. One possible location discussed previously is a parcel of land behind Lucci's Market.

The Executive Office of Community Development (EOCD) will go ahead with plans to do wetland testing on the Deming Way site, Buckley said.

WHA member Bill Strob spoke out in favor of sewers as one way to resolve the septic problems. He suggested asking Rep. Jim Miceli and Senator Bob Buell for assistance to obtain the necessary funding. Resident Mel Keough was "completely confused" on the commitment between the town and the WHA Board regarding sewerage for the Deming Way area.

Committee interviews superintendent finalists

Wilmington school committee members interviewed superintendent finalists Barbara Hunt, principal of the Daniel Butler School in Belmont, and Robert Horan, assistant superintendent of the Wilmington school system, at a special meeting called for that purpose Tuesday night.

Slated for interviews Wednesday night in the high school library are the other two candidates, Timothy Gormley, school superintendent in Rumford, Maine, and William Fay, Wilmington West Intermediate School principal.

Committee members took turns asking several in-depth questions of each finalist on such facets as educational background and experience, the candidates' view of the superintendency, and what each would bring to the system as superintendent.

Hunt said she views the superintendency as the link between the school department and the community and feels it's important to "really listen to" and involve the staff "to get the best from them."

She believes, she said, in "tightening up" the basic requirements for students and thinks student services, such as the alternate education program, are "vital." She suggested a study be made to see how a teacher's time could best be utilized. Today, she explained, teachers have so much to do and not enough time to do it in.

"I'm accessible—that's my style," she said, pointing out the importance of being available to both parents and the teaching staff. She said she also believes in providing "back up support" for building principals as they are part of a "team" with the superintendent and should work together as such.

Hunt said she values good communication skills and flexibility in a superintendent and feels she possesses these qualities.

Her background includes ten years administrative experience as a reading coordinator and experience as head of a Title I program, as a special education teacher and as a high school teacher for one year in both the Rockport and Belmont school systems. She has also had experience with the budget process and computers.

Horan told the committee he feels the most important role of the superintendent is to provide leadership. The superintendent, he said, provides the "impetus" to get the job done and makes the final decisions. What are especially needed in Wilmington, he added, are some goals and long range planning so the administration isn't forced to just react to a crisis when one develops.

Horan said since he feels you "can't run any program from the central office," he would expect to be "on the firing line" talking to staff and letting them know what he would expect from them.

Though he thinks town residents currently see him as "an unknown, low profile figure," he said, he pointed out he's worked "shoulder to shoulder with the school committee" and "grown" in many ways during his stay in Wilmington.

He said he believes his greatest strength is his teaching, administrative and renovation experience. In his career, he's held the positions of teacher, assistant principal, principal and assistant superintendent, with a total of 11 years administrative experience. He's also raised funds, contracted with architects and planned space in building renovations in previous jobs in Connecticut.

"There is very little that I haven't done," Horan said.

He named superintendent. Horan said his main priority would be to attend to "unfinished business" in the system and make firm decisions which would improve morale and lead to "a more professional climate."

According to Chairman Tony Accardi, future agenda items include on-site visits to Maine June 10 and to Belmont, Ma. June 11 to afford school committee members a chance to view candidates Gormley and Hunt at their places of employment. Accardi suggested members observe candidates Fay and Horan on an individual basis, at their own convenience.

The evening of June 13 will be set aside for a combination Candidate's Night and Symposium. The public is encouraged to attend and ask questions of all finalists. Accardi said. Questions must be submitted in writing and will be screened by a moderator.

After the more formal portion of the evening, community residents are invited to exchange information with school committee members to provide more feedback to the selection process.

The date of June 13 gained approval by a vote of three to two. It is hoped a new superintendent will be chosen by June 30, or possibly as early as June 19.

The Wilmington Company of Minutemen held its annual Liberty Pole ceremony on Sunday afternoon at Rotary Park where the Minutemen raised the pole in defiance of the king. Several 18th century groups took part in the ceremonies, including some men representing British "Redcoats," who demanded that the Liberty Pole be taken down. The Redcoats "executed" Fred Shine, the newest Minuteman recruit, and a mock battle ensued. Lying on the grass in hot woolen clothing are Mal Malenchini who was a Redcoat for the afternoon, and Fred Shine, Capt. Stu Neilson is in the background, sheathing his sword.

Spotlighters will present 'A Tribute to Broadway'

Forty performers are currently in rehearsal for "A Tribute to Broadway." The troupe of singers and dancers are representatives from the Silver Lake Spotlighters Cultural Center for the arts in Woburn.

The benefit performances on June 27, 28 and 29 at 8 p.m. at the Kennedy Junior High in Woburn will kick off the official capital fundraising drive for the center. All proceeds from the musical will be used to help meet a capital campaign goal of $200,000.

The center will be located on carriage - house property owned by Dr. Paul Lennon.

The Spotlighters will renovate the facility to provide art studios, performance space and classroom space for a number of cultural enrichment programs. The center will be available for use by civic and community organizations and will also house a children's theater program.

The show will feature musical segments from America's best known musicals. Familiar tunes from My Fair Lady, Chicago, Guys and Dolls, Pippin, West Side Story, Jacques Brel, South Pacific and The Wiz, are only a few of the many musicals, the Spotlighters highlight in this musical celebration.

The troupe will also demonstrate dance styles reminiscent of the various musical eras. Several numbers are particularly enhanced by tap dancers costumed with top hat and canes.

The talented performers demonstrate a wide range of skills and the performance hopes to introduce area residents to one of the many performing and educational opportunities the Spotlighters hope to offer at the center.

Seats for the performances may be reserved by calling the box office between 6 and 9 p.m. at 658-6324. All reserved tickets are $8.00. At the door tickets will be $10.00. The Spotlighters look forward to your support.

Quartermaster Third Class Kevin Ronan, USNR, operates the Radar Sonar Surveillance Center's VHF equipment during Kernal Usher 85-2.

Wilmington reservist takes part in naval exercises

A Wilmington naval reservist recently participated in Kernal Usher 85-2, a United States Naval Pacific Fleet Harbor Defense - Port Breakout exercise in San Diego.

Quartermaster Third Class Kevin Ronan, USNR-R, 7 Lloyd Road, was a positive contributor to the unit's successful efforts in accomplishing its mission, according to senior officers in the Unit.

Ronan is a member of the Navy's elite Mobile Inshore Undersea Warfare (MIUW) Unit 201, a Lawrence, Massachusetts based reserve unit which operates the AN-TSQ-108 Radar soanr Surveillance Center (RSSC). The MIUW, one of the top such units in the entire country, is a hard-ware equipped, fully operational coastal - harbor defense unit which can be airlifted to any part of the world. It is capable of operating independently or in support of amphibious assault, mine countermeasures, and harbor defense operations.

While based on San Diego, Ronan worked closely with other professionals in his unit; the 72-member MIUW unit coordinated efforts with numerous Naval and Coast Guard forces including surface, submarine, and helicopter resources.

Because of the unique nature of the MIUW, Ronan also qualified in the use of various weapons systems including the M-16 and .45 caliber pistol at the Naval firing range.

Ronan is a 12 year naval veteran and works within the unit's operations department as a plotter and RSSC watch stander. Upon his recent completion of two weeks of annual active duty for training in San Diego, Ronan is expected to participate in numerous weekend training exercises at remote New England seaboard sites with his MIUW shipmates during the spring and summer months.

MIUW 201 is commanded by CDR W.C.S. Mays, III, USNR-R of Coventry, Rhode Island.

Outdated science text causes Tewksbury committee to review procedures

by Elaine DePasquale
An outdated science text that refers to putting a man on the moon as a future event has Tewksbury school personnel red-faced.

School Committee Chairperson Dr. Carol Wareing made reference to the embarrassing text at a meeting last week, pointing to it as an example of the need for an in-depth evaluation tool to be used by teachers when recommending textbooks.

Dr. Wareing explained that the text had been used at the Trahan School, formerly the Shawshen, only as a supplemental resource, but not as a basic text. It had been used because of a high quality astronomical chart it contained. She admitted, however, it had been an unwise choice.

"I want to invest money in new textbooks, but I don't want them chosen willy nilly," she said.

A proposal for a new textbook evaluation tool for secondary level texts by Dr. Edward Farley, assistant superintendent for curriculum, failed to find favor with the committee.

"If we are going to develop a textbook guide, it should be all encompassing," said Committee member Tom Cooke.

According to Dr. Wareing, the tool suggested by Dr. Farley did not cover enough ground. She reeled off several areas she felt should be addressed in a textbook evaluation tool.

"These are the questions I will ask before adopting textbooks and you have the option of presenting them to teachers," she said to Dr. Farley.

The committee voted unanimously to table action on textbook adoption criteria to allow Dr. Farley time to design a second version of the evaluation tool incorporating the committee's ideas.

At their regular meeting last week committee members also voted unanimously to post the new positions of Health Education Director and special education Systemwide Team Chairperson.

They failed to approve a $300 request by Dr. Farley to pay six teachers to work two days this summer on a pending curriculum guide.

The two positions drew little discussion.

The concept of a systemwide team chairperson was the result of a recent reorganization of the special education department. The reorganization is designed to provide better communication with parents of special education students and was undertaken after parents complained that direct services to special needs children were insufficient. Under the reorganization the jobs of two sped youth advisors were eliminated and physical therapy (PT) and occupational therapy (OT) positions were increased to full time as well.

According to Superintendent of Schools John Wynn, the team chairperson will hold a ten month position, at a salary to be negotiated with the Tewksbury Teachers Association (TTA) which may include a stipend of 35 days extra pay.

The committee accepted the job description with an amendment which specified the individual selected may "in the absence of the director of special education, assume the role of administrator at the direction of the superintendent."

Committee Member Lou Carciofi suggested that the committee consider "the potential of this person for filling the shoes of his immediate superior" when choosing a team chairperson.

"We all know that the director of special education has been applying for a position both within and outside Tewksbury," he said.

Among the duties of the team chairperson will be meetings with parents and school personnel, handling of out-of-district placements and review of student educational plans.

Also a ten month position, with a stipend yet to be negotiated with the TTA, is the position of Director of Health Education.

According to the job description accepted by the school committee last week, the post will require a master's degree, certification in health education, six years of teaching experience and two years of administrative experience.

Among the duties tied to the job are: directing a K-12 chemical dependency program; a health in-service program and the school health services; supervising the health education staff; working with health related citizens groups; school and classroom visits; and budgeting and requisitioning functions.

Because of the late hour, committee members declined to discuss the OT and PT positions, reserving them instead for a later agenda.

Tammy Williams wins award

Tammy Williams of Woburn Street, Wilmington, was recently honored by Dean Junior College at the College's annual honors and awards luncheon.

Tammy, a senior business administration major, was the recipient of the Dean's List Award for maintaining honor grades for three consecutive semesters. She was also recognized as a member of Phi Theta Kappa.

A graduate of Wilmington High School, she was the recipient of the Gregg Shorthand and the Gregg Typing awards. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Williams.

It's Golden Pea Spoon time

It's that time of year again, the time when Town Crier readers (or some of them) compete for the honor of having the first garden peas for dinner and thus winning the wholly coveted but highly regarded Town Crier Golden Pea Spoon.

The first family to have a mess of peas for dinner will be the winner.

The only award is getting the a picture of the grower's peas in the newspaper along with a story. It seems to be great fun, for it has been going on now for nearly thirty years.

June 17 is the average date for first peas, but many home garden people have beaten that record. Of course, commercial farmers may not compete.

Marion Seim of Maryland, the former Mrs. Patrick Thebeau sent three pea pods from her garden this week. She has done this before and somehow, because she does not live in the area, she has never won an award.

Marion advises that she planted her peas in February.

There was plenty of green paint at Wilmington Common on Friday afternoon, when more than 100 Girl Scouts showed up to paint trash barrels. Not only was there enough for all the barrels — the girls also had plenty on their hands and faces, and on the grass, too. The painters included Katie Palm and Alyson McCabe (above).

Germans saw American radar on the Chanute Victory

Copyright 1985

by Captain Larz Neilson

The Boston Globe on June 3 carried a story about the development of radar during World War II. Radar, and allied instruments were big military secrets in World War II. Ships were never to be photographed in such a way as would make a picture of the radar antenna, because from such a photograph enemy agents might be able to figure out the wave-length of the radar.

After World War II was ended, in the North Atlantic, the writer was in command of a ship which made a voyage to England and France. Food was carried to England and from France American soldiers were brought home.

As the ship approached England in about 11 degrees west longitude, a fog could be seen ahead. In that fog, tracked by the radar on the Goodhue was a ship. Just before the Goodhue entered that fog the other ship emerged, and for a couple of minutes the captains of the two ships could see each other.

The other ship, British, signaled over to ask the position of the Goodhue. Obviously the captain of that ship was going to take that position add a small appropriate distance, and establish his own position.

But the Goodhue had been tracking the British ship by radar, as has been told.

The answer, from the Goodhue:

"Your position, at 0800Z (British Mean Time) was 41-57 North, 11-33 West, course 237 degrees, speed 10.7 knots."

That was enough, it is to be believed, to leave the British captain scratching his head. How could that Yankee captain know so much?

The next voyages were in command of a larger and faster ship, the Chanute Victory. It was also equipped with radar.

On the second voyage aboard the Chanute Victory, German prisoners, 800, were being taken to Britain from the United States. There was a full company of military police to guard the prisoners. Each night, before dark, the prisoners were ordered below decks for the night and then were allowed to return to the top deck at eight a.m. the next day.

The captain knew that there were, among those prisoners, one man who had been commander of a U-Boat, and another who had been captain of a merchant ship, but there was no way of telling who was who. All the prisoners were in black uniform, with PW prominent on the front and the back of the uniform.

But, up on the Grand Banks, the Chanute Victory ran into a fog. Course and speed were maintained. The Chanute Victory officers could tell, by watching the radar, whether or not any other ship was in the area. No fog whistle was sounded, under the circumstances.

The captain, of course, had to stay on the bridge, as he always does in a fog.

At 8 a.m. the doors opened, so the German prisoners could come up on deck. This would be the time that would tell who was in the U Boat commander, or the ship master.

The first prisoners to get on deck looked around, saw that it was foggy, and talked to each other about it. Or, so one could guess.

Then came a prisoner, who, when he saw it was foggy, looked up to check the ship's whistle, which should have been blowing fog signals, and then, secondly, went to look over the ship's side, to see how fast the ship was going. Then and only after the two looks, that prisoner spoke about the situation to the others on the ship.

He was obviously either the U Boat commander or the merchant ship master.

That alerted all the German prisoners. Eight hundred heads turned to look at the ship's whistle and to look over the side to see how fast the ship was going.

Then someone spotted the radar antenna, going round and round, on its post over the ship's bridge.

"Achtung." He pointed at the radar antenna. And that was how 800 Germans learned about the American radar.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

What do you think of this four-way deal?

The Arts Council buys one painting of each Wilmington artist. They are used to decorate the new home of the elderly center. The Council is reimbursed by the State Arts Lottery.

By this plan, the artists sell work, the gamblers provide the money, the elderly and rest of townspeople who visit the center can enjoy the work, the Council for the Arts gets the credit. The same system could be used for the Town hall walls. (The main trouble really lies in the number of dabblers who unethically - illegally copy others' work). And the purchasing could be spread over several years, since some of each payment does (and should) go to scholarships and performing events.

Former Chairperson

Dear Larz:

Hopetully, by now the Town will have reconsidered its decision to tear down the Walker School.

I remembr how afraid I was as I climbed the steps to the Walker School. Mrs. Wiberg told me to put my things in the cloak closet. It surely was big for a closet and we were uncertain just what a "cloak" was! Our classroom was the largest room I had ever been in with a great clock (I think it was Roman numerals). The desks with the inkwells were really something; mix blue powder, water, and presto - ink! I imagine I didn't use ink 'til the later grades; Mrs. Kevill's room, Mrs. Oman's, or maybe Mrs. Donagan's.

The day I remember most was when a bunch of goats tip-toed up the Walker's steps. Room by room we were thrilled to peek out at the herd peeking in at us!

The best part of all was recess and lunch! Four large boulders near the Church Street sidewalk were used as horses, the black swing set (minus the swings) was used to shimmy up. The lilacs in the back of the building were fun to play among. In the winter, a note from your parents would allow you to skate across the street on the cranberry bog.

I still think of those four years at the Walker fondly and the friendships made with Elaine Bertwell, Judy Cutter, Janice Buck and Eileen Lepore.

From the Walker School we were off to the Buzzell School. The Buzzell was saved from demolition; I want the Walker saved also.

Sincerely,
Ann Walsh

Dr. Lepore honored

Dr. Ralph Lepore and his family were honored at a dinner at the Wilmington Sons of Italy Hall on Saturday night. After more than 20 years medical practice in Wilmington, Dr. Lepore is moving to North Carolina. Shown with him at the dinner are his wife Margaret, son Larry and daughters Kathleen and Colleen. Missing from the picture is Christopher.

Reading Light's problems

There is a current squabble between the Reading Municipal Light Department (RMLD) on one hand and the Town of Wilmington and the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce on the other. Parts of the disagreement will be aired on June 11, before the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities.

Basically the causes are economic. Some of those are of long standing and some more recent, because of the increasing costs. The increase in oil prices, starting in the mid 1970s; the need for more electric power in an uncertain world; and the economic growth of Wilmington are three factors. There are others which reflect indirectly, such as the construction of nuclear power plants.

The RMLD is a municipal utility. It is the largest municipal utility in Massachusetts, and one of the best. It purchases electric power from wholesalers, such as the Boston Edison Company. It retails that power to its customers. Over 60 percent of the power it sells is to Wilmington customers.

The RMLD is run by three commissioners, elected in Reading, officials who serve without pay. The commissioners hold regular meetings in which, to paraphrase the Reading Chronicle slightly "they do their own thing."

One of those "things" was to become a part of the Massachusetts Municipal Wholesale Electric Company (MMWEC) nine years ago. This is a consortium of 34 separate municipal utilities which act together to purchase power or to build generating plants, as if they were one.

There are MMWEC Stony Brook generating plants, in Ludlow, Mass. The RMLD owns one sixth of the units.

The RMLD has ownership interests in Millstone 3 (in Connecticut), and in Seabrook, and a contract with the Pilgrim I plant of Boston Edison.

The construction of Seabrook is, and has been, a controversial subject. Anti nuclear forces have concentrated on the site. Utility officials and others feel it is necessary because of the costs of importing either oil or electric power. At the present time the United States is importing 32 percent of the crude oil it uses.

One of the purposes for the construction of Seabrook is to assure the area of electric power, without payment to foreign sources. Many regard this as a serious problem.

The RMLD owns six-tenths of one percent of Seabrook, basically because of the future needs for power in that area. It has been paying regularly its share of the project, but recent events are casting a cloud.

The Mass DPU recently issued a ruling which restricts payments for Seabrook's construction. One of the utilities involved in the Seabrook construction, Fitchburg Gas & Electric, has had to cancel its payments, and others may find themselves in the same box. The decision has been appealed to the Massachusetts Supreme Court.

If the Mass. Supreme Court upholds the DPU, the RMLD and other municipal utilities may find themselves amidst greater problems. The ruling could cause the construction of Seabrook to cease.

It is to be believed that Reading has spent a lot of money in the construction of Seabrook, to date. This has been with no knowledge being given to the participating communities.

In no way was Wilmington a part of the decision. This, to many, hurts.

Without their knowledge or consent of any Wilmington residents or officials, the RMLD has invested huge sums in an enterprise that is, possibly, problematical. Wilmington officials and customers feel that they should at least hear from the RMLD.

The Chamber of Commerce tried to have a conversation. There were no results. The Chamber then hired a law firm and has amassed a lot of pertinent information.

The Wilmington selectmen have in recent weeks had one meeting with RMLD officials, which the RMLD described as "informal." The selectmen have put the town counsel to work. They have also hired a well known Boston firm, to advise on whether or not Wilmington should buy its power from sources other than the RMLD.

Considering the indebtedness that some people believe the RMLD has, because of Seabrook, the people of Reading will be faced with a real problem if Wilmington opts for another power source. If Wilmington were to pull out of the RMLD system, the customers of Reading, North Reading and Lynnfield Center will be faced with that huge Seabrook cost, and this without the substantial revenues which have come from Wilmington in recent years.

The commissioners of the RMLD could possibly alleviate the situation by laying the facts and figures on the table, for all to see. It might be time for the RMLD to stop "doing its own thing" and take the public into its confidence.

Wilmington girls travel to France

Erin Cameron, daughter of Eleanor and William Cameron of Liberty Street, Wilmington and Holly Durette, daughter of Nancy and Leon Durette of West Street, will soon travel to France to spend four weeks living with French families.

Two of more than 1800 students from all over the United States, Erin and Holly are participating in Nacel Cultural exchanges, a non-profit organization whose purpose is to promote international friendship and understanding. Arrangements for the homestay were coordinated by Virginia Adams of Reading.

Students are selected on the basis of interest in the French culture and customs and the ability to communicate at a basic level in French.

Host families for French students are needed in this area. Anyone wishing to host a French teenager from June 29 - July 26 should call 944-7577.

Charles Pilcher

Retired Lt. Cdr. Charles (Bob) Pilcher of 12 Easement Rd., Tewksbury died at the Veterans Administration Hospital, Jamaica Plain, Wednesday morning, May 29, following a prolonged illness.

Rep. Beckwith to hold office hours

State Representative Geoffrey C. Beckwith, who represents Reading, North Reading and Wilmington's precinct 3 in the Massachusetts House, this week announced the schedule for his June district office hours.

"A state representative must be accessible to everyone in his or her district," said Beckwith, who holds regular office hours each month in order to make it easier for constituents to meet with him whenever they have a question or a problem concerning state government.

Beckwith will hold his June office hours at two locations: on Thursday evening, June 20, he will be in the Trustees' Room of the Flint Memorial Public Library on Bow Street, North Reading from 7 to 8:30 p.m.; and on Thursday evening, June 27, he will be in the Conference Room of the Reading Public Library on Middlesex Avenue in Reading from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

Beckwith reports that many people are already contacting him at both his home and State House office with inquiries regarding legislation, and with suggestions on a variety of issues.

"Interested citizens should never hesitate to call or write me any time," said Beckwith, who invited residents to get in touch with him at either his Boston office (State House, Room 236, Boston, MA 02133, 722-2430), or at home (252 Ash Street, Reading, MA, 01867, 944-5030). "But these office hours will provide folks with an additional opportunity to see me personally and offer input, ask for information, or request assistance with a problem regarding state government."

Simon Cutter marks 50th anniversary as an attorney

Atty. Simon Cutter

Attorney Simon Cutter and his wife, Edith, attended his 50th class reunion banquet recently as guests of the Dean of the Boston University Law School. Attorney Cutter, who received his law degree with honors 50 years ago, was president of the Honor Society (Woolsack) and associate editor in chief of the Law Review while attending Boston University law School.

Attorney Cutter was town moderator of Wilmington from 1954 to 1969. He is a former assistant district attorney of Middlesex County and was a sponsor of the Wilmington Housing Authority and its first chairman. He was also originator and president for three years of the Wilmington Police Association. He is at present director and charter member of the Wilmington Lions Club as well as a former president of that organization.

Attorney and Mrs. Cutter live at 43 Church Street, Wilmington. They are the parents of Judith Isaac, Nancy Weiner and Richard Cutter. Richard is an attorney and associated with his father in the law firm of Cutter and Cutter.

Honor society inductee

Daniel S. Maynard (left) of 8 Grant St., Wilmington, a student in Suffolk University's master in public administration program, was recently inducted into the university's chapter of Pi Alpha Alpha, the national honor society for public affairs and administration. Presenting Maynard with membership certificate is Mark Andrews, president of Pi Alpha Alpha, while Dr. Frances Burke, professor of public administration and faculty advisor to Pi Alpha Alpha, looks on.

Prof. Bischoff receives award from ULowell

Frederick B. Bischoff, professor of mechanical engineering at the University of Lowell, was one of three U Lowell Continuing Education professors who received the first annual Haskell Memorial Award for Distinguished Teaching at ceremonies held recently in Lowell.

Bischoff, formerly of Wilmington, now lives in Andover.

The Haskell Memorial Award for Distinguished Teaching - named after the late William E. Haskell, Jr., a much-admired professor of civil engineering at the University - recognizes continuing education faculty members who have demonstrated teaching excellence.

Educated in Wilmington public schools, Prof. Bischoff earned a B.S. and M.S. from Lowell Technological Institute, a predecessor institution of the University of Lowell and has conducted graduate studies at the University of Iowa and Colorado U. V.P.I.

Upon graduation from Lowell Tech., Bischoff secured a position at the footwear plant of U.S. Rubber Co., Naugatuck, Conn., and two years later at the invitation of Prof. Herbert J. Ball, accepted an instructor's position at his alma mater.

After serving two years at the Army Environmental Health Labs in Edgewood, Maryland, and the Army Corps of Engineers in Okinawa, Bischoff returned to his teaching duties at Lowell Tech. and in addition to being on the full-time faculty of the mechanical engineering department, has been involved with the Division of Continuing Education since that time, developing the present programs in Mechanical Engineering Technology.

The May 5 ceremony at the University's Cumnock Hall was attended by nearly 200 students, families of students, professors and administrators. Dr. Dirk Messelaar, assistant director of Continuing Education presented distinguished teaching awards to Bischoff, Dr. Brian Mitchell, Assistant Professor at Anna Marie College, Paston, and Westford resident Cyril Papan, vice president and director of marketing at SORL, a Division of Optronics International, Inc., Chelmsford.

A resident of North Andover, Bischoff is the son of Otto F. and Alice (Bedell) Bischoff and is married to Ann (Hobbs), formerly of Greensboro, North Carolina, who earned a B.A. (Magna Cum Laude) from U Lowell in 1984. His sister, Andrea Houser, lives in Wilmington.

The Bischoffs have three children; Lynn who earned degrees in physics and mechanical engineering from Ohio University, is presently employed as a project engineer with Goodyear, Wheel and Brake Division; Karl, who is married to Karin (Ott), daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Ott, received his B.S. in mechanical engineering from ULowell and is an engineer at Wang Labs; and Paul, who received his B.S. in industrial technology from ULowell and is employed as an engineer with GCA in Andover.

Bischoff's interests include woodworking and housebuilding which have culminated in two Maine summer houses built by the family and the passive solar house in North Andover they built last summer.

Nominations for the Haskell Memorial Award were solicited from the almost 6,000 continuing education students at the University and a screenign committee consisting of faculty, students, alumni, and administrators chose candidates from the humanities, engineering, management, and science areas based on the quality course content, effectiveness of presentation, and motivation of students.

Marilyn MacKinnon, Janet Lapper honored with 'temporary employee awards'

Moore Temps has chosen two Wilmington women to be recipients of its annual employee appreciation awards.

In April of this year, Moore Employment, Inc., also known as "Moore Temps," completed its fifth year in operation. Each year since its opening, an annual award has been given in appreciation of the recipient's total work performance as a temporary employee of Moore Temps.

This year the Temporary Secretary of the Year award will be presented to Mrs. Marilyn B. MacKinnon of Wilmington, who proved she possesses quality, dependability, loyalty, skills and talent as a temporary employee and that she personifies the attitude of an employee much desired by all companies during their time of need.

According to Helen A. Moore, owner and president of Moore Temps, Marilyn is a joy and pleasure to work with according to every supervisor to whom she's been assigned. In addition to the above qualities, her attendance has been perfect during the last 15 months as a Moore Temp. Marilyn is, by our standards, the type of individual who is not atypical to the temporary personnel placement business. She has certainly kept our reputation in the industry at the highest level possible.

Married to William MacKinnon, Marilyn supplemented the family income while raising their children, Robert, Jean and Pamela and with her financial help, their three children have completed their college education.

She is a graduate of Katherine Gibbs Secretarial School. She left her permanent position to explore the field of temporary work for two reasons, she says, - she outgrew her job (she was denied a promotion because she was not replaceable), and secondly, temporary work would allow her the freedom to make business trips occasionally with her husband, Bill, without jeopardizing her career.

Marilyn says, "Being a Moore Temporary has given me the total flexibility to work when I want; it enables me to travel with Bill occasionally without jeopardizing my work status; temporary work has certainly increased my skills and has created the challenge I so needed; and I enjoy very much the growth and respect I receive from all of my work assignments and especially from Helen and Mike Moore who truly know the temporary placement business. They use common sense and concern for each individual. I can truthfully say that it has been, and still is, a very enjoyable work experience."

Also, sharing the spotlight of our fifth year celebration, Moore Temps is commencing a new award for outstanding service. They have proudly given this to our Janet Lapper, wife of Jack and mother of Cheryl, John and Susan.

From Wilmington, Jan reentered the temporary work force when her children were teenagers saying that a temporary career allowed her time to explore the job market. She has grown with Moore Temps during the past five years. Her skills have increased tremendously and she, too, is constantly requested to return to prior assigned jobs.

Jan says "since joining Moore Temporaries I have found that by working as a temp, my skills have expanded along with the fast growing trends of the secretarial work force. I strongly feel that without the push and encouragement of Helen and Mike Moore, I would not have had the confidence to challenge the word processing field which has enabled me to be more versatile on my many work assignments. Not only do I enjoy the flexibility of working when I want to, I equally enjoy the time for family commitments as well. I believe that by being a Moore Temp, I have a more positive attitude as a working mother."

winner

Mrs. Bonnie Bowen of Grace Drive had to call a neighbor and double check her number. But just like Cinderella's slipper, her number matched. Mrs. Bowen won a $10,000 certificate of deposit at Massbank for Savings in a contest on WHDH radio. On hand for the presentation of the passbook at Massbank headquarters in Reading were Jess Cain of WHDH, Mrs. Bonnie Bowen, Jack Bowen, and Gerard Brandi, executive vice president of Massbank.

Farewell

Youngsters at the Brookside Nursery School in Wilmington will be bidding farewell to Mrs. Joan Foster, who has taught at the school for 17 years. Originally from Birmingham, England, Mrs. Foster has lived in Tewksbury for many years. She and her husband Warren plan to move to Martha's Vineyard. Present and former students will have an opportunity to say goodbye at a "Splashes" party on June 14.

Health center presents child safe program

The Regional Health Center in Wilmington, in conjunction with the Wilmington Police Department and the Impact on Youth Organization, will offer area parents two programs designed to preserve children's physical safety and emotional well-being.

"Child-Safe," a program conducted by Stephanie Meegan, Impact on Youth lecturer, author and educational consultant, provides parents with practical preventive strategies relating to child abduction and sexual abuse.

"Child-Safe," which is geared specifically for parents, teachers, and youth workers, has been well received in over 50 communities across Massachusetts and New Hampshire. "Child-Safe" is scheduled for Wednesday, June 19, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the Regional Health Center.

Fingerprints serve as an additional means of child identification for parents and police. While the mere thought of child abduction alone is indeed horrible, fingerprints can prove invaluable in the search for, and identification of your child. The Wilmington Police Department will be at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington on Monday, June 17 from 3 to 5 p.m. to provide free fingerprinting services.

Please contact the Community Health Education Department at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington to pre-register for either program.

bits & pieces

Birthdays

Julie Kane of Park Street, Wilmington will blow out the candles for the 10th time on June 8.

Christopher Ajesi of Geiger Drive, Tewksbury will be 12 years old on June 9 and will share greetings with Jean Tarricone of North Street, Wilmington and Robert Blonigen of Crescent Street.

Suzanne Downey of Rogers Street, Tewksbury seems to have her June 10 birthday all to herself.

At least six area residents will be celebrating birthdays on June 11, including - Matthew Ferro of Lancaster Drive, Tewksbury who will be 12; Sandra Keon of Regis Road, Carrie Mazza of Independence Avenue and Wilmington residents Jeff Lyman of Meadow Lane, Kelley Reinbolt of Sprucewood Road, Debra O'Brien of Butters Row and John Derooy of Aldrich Road.

Michael Kane of Park Street, Wilmington will face a birthday cake glowing with six candles on June 12 and will share greetings with Millie Cavanaugh of Main Street, and Douglas Pillsbury of Sewell Road.

June 13 will mark the special day of Gary Lacey of West Street, Wilmington, Mary Geoffrion of Chapman Avenue and Tewksbury residents Gina Hewitt of Vernon Street and Shawn Buckley of Helvetia Street.

Mark Valentino of Rolling Meadow Road, Tewksbury and Stephen Synan of Little Field Avenue, will be old enough to vote on June 14 and will share greetings with Lori Ann Jewer of Oak Street who will be 16, Clesson Downs of Shawsheen Street who isn't saying how many times he's celebrated the day before (the Town Crier knows) and Evan DeWire of Dadant Drive, Wilmington.

Golden Ager

It looks as the only member of Wilmington's Golden Age Club on the current birthday list is Mary Quandt of Pershing Street who will turn another page on June 14.

Anniversaries

Mr. and Mrs. John Tebeau of Suncrest Avenue, Wilmington will mark their 37th wedding anniversary on June 9.

Jim and Claire Tildsley of Andover Street, Wilmington will dance the Anniversary Waltz for the 35th time on June 10 and will share greetings with Fern and Jim Boudreau of Roosevelt Road who will be celebrating for the 24th time.

Five area couples will be celebrating anniversaries on June 11 including John and Maggie Imbimbo of Cottage Street, Wilmington, their 47th; Henry and Vinnie Witkowski of Winter Street, their 22nd, Wilmington DPW Supt. and Mrs. Bob Palmer of Railroad Avenue, the Dick Scanlon's of Birchwood Road and John and Ann Regolino of Sunset Road, Tewksbury, their 35th.

Silver anniversary

Angea and Norman Reid of Lumac Road, Wilmington will observe their 25th wedding anniversary on June 9.

The star

The anniversary star for this week should go to Mr. and Mrs. Daniel MacDonald of Burlington Avenue, Wilmington who will mark their 58th wedding anniversary on June 12.

To enter

To enter an item in Bits & Pieces, call the Town Crier at 658-2346 days and Tuesday nights or 658-2907 other nights and weekends. Ask for BeeDee.

John Zaino

John Zaino, of Linda Road, Class of '86, U.S. Merchant Marine Academy, Long Island, New York, will be named regimental operations officer in a change of command ceremony to be held at the Academy on June 11.

This promotion makes him third highest officer in command of the regiment of midshipmen. His duties include, but are not limited to being chief of the regimental staff of midshipmen officers, assisting in performance of academy reviews (parades honor guests, etc.) in charge of second and third class midshipmen.

John is a 1982 graduate of Wilmington High School. His parents, Arthur and Barbara will go to New York for the ceremony.

After school care

The Greater Lowell Family YMCA after school day care is accepting applications for its September program. The YMCA provides a quality day care program for children in grades K through six that includes arts and crafts. Swimming lessons, recreational games and sports, daily snack, tutoring help and other activities.

Extended day care is available on school holidays and vacations. Call 454-7825.

Xi Alpha Delta

According to Kathi Eastman of Pine Street, Tewksbury, the Xi Alpha Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority has recently celebrated the founding of its organization at a dinner held with Delta Kappa and Alpha Tau, two sister-sororities in the area. At that time, Brenda Towne of Billerica was awarded the well deserved honor of "Woman of the Year."

The local organization has also just held an Exemplar Ritual for three of its members - Rosemary Cronin, Kathy Lavallee and Brenda Towne, all of Billerica.

Lauren Turner

Lauren Turner of Judith Road, Wilmington was among the full-time undergraduate students who have been named to the dean's honor list at Quinnipiac College (Hamden, Conn.) for its recently completed spring semester.

Lillian Peck

Mrs. Lillian Peck of Eames Street, Wilmington is currently a patient at St. John's Hospital. She would like to hear from her friends in the area.

Denmark and Spain

Denmark and Spain will be represented at the Greater Lowell Family YMCA's camping programs this summer. As part of the international camping YMCA camp counselor program, Martin Ahler of Denmark and Montserrat Munzo of Spain will be joining the staff for both the day camp program for boys and girls six through 12 and the youth adventure trip camp for age 13 and up.

For more information on the camping programs call 454-7825 and ask for a brochure.

Donnelly cracks National team

All-American field hockey player Megan Donnelly, a junior from Wilmington, has been named to the United States National Team as a defenseman. The National team is currently on a 10 day tour of Europe.

Also on the National team is former UMass goalkeeper Patty Shea of Belmont. Both team members were coached at UMass by former National Team member and coach Pam Hixon.

Sarah Phillips qualifies

Nine-year-old Sarah Phillips of Wilmington has qualified for the United States of Independent Gymnastics Clubs (U.S.A.I.G.C.) level IV profile skills test.

Sarah's ability to pass a difficult test of strength and flexibility enables her to compete in a skill test that will be held in Albany, New York in November.

The test, administered by Gary Goodson of Colorado, is the United States effort to catch up with foreign countries in the development of young gymnasts. Until now, only gymnasts who could afford private gymnastics managed to make it to the top of the sport.

It is rare for a young gymnast such as Sarah to pass the first time. Sarah has worked very hard in an effort to do well at the U.S.A.I.G.C. level. So have her teammates. Jessica Harrison, another teammate of Sarah's who trains at level III which requires a higher score, missed qualifying by just two points.

Sarah and her teammates, many of whom are from Wilmington, currently train at the Montvale School of Gymnastics on the Jets I Team.

Tewksbury tennis clinic

The Tewksbury Recreation Department will sponsor a tennis program for Tewksbury boys and girls ages eight through 17 at the Livingston Street courts.

Lessons will begin June 24 and run throughout the month of July. Players in the eight-10 age group will meet Monday and Wednesday mornings from 9 to 11. The older players, ages 11-17 will meet Tuesday and Friday mornings from 9 to 11.

Registration will take place the morning of the first lesson. Each player will need to bring his or her own tennis racket and proof of age to participate. The program will end in July with a tournament for all participants. Questions should be directed to the Recreation Department at 851-3161.

TMHS boys' track

TMHS boys wrap up season

The Tewksbury High School boys' varsity track and field squad concluded its season this past week with the second annual MVC League meet, and for those who qualified, the Class B Sectional State Meet. Two members of the team also qualified for the All-State Meet held this past Saturday at Gardner High School in Central Massachusetts.

MVC unofficial league meet

The league meet in the MVC is held for those individuals who do not qualify for the State meets. The meet is extremely competitive, as several of the performers actually qualified for the State meet in this meet. Tewksbury had several excellent performances on this day.

First place finishes were produced by Jimmy Field in the 300 meter low hurdles with a 42.2 time and sophomore Robbie Busch in the two mile as he easily bested the large field with a 10:28.7 time.

Second place finishes were recorded by discus thrower Chris McHardy, 113'3", miler Dave Flanagan, who broke the five minute barrier easily for the first time in his running career with a 4:53.8 time, Eric Meininghaus, who finished second to teammate Jim Field in the 300 meter low; David French in the javelin, 126'6", Patrick Green in the hurdles with a 42.9 time, and a fine 37'4" effort in the triple jump; Tim McCaffery with a 2:12.6 time in the 880 yard run; John Cho with a 26.1 220 yard dash time; and Patrick Green again, with a 56.2 time in the 440 yard run.

Fourth place finishers included Jim Field in the high jump, 5'6" and David French in the 220 yard dash with a surprising 26.2 performance. Fifth place performances came from Jim Marsh, 104'8" in the javelin, Steven Ellwood, with a 5:09.0

mile run and Brian Tremblay with a two mile time of 11:14.9.

Sixth place finishers included Eric Meininghaus with a 17'1" long jump, Joe Fazio with a 95'6" toss in the discus, and the mile relay team of Steve Ellwood, Dave Flanagan, Keith Bennett, and Tim McCaffery, with a 3:58.7 time. The 440 yard relay team of Pat Green, Scott Fay, Eric Meininghaus and Jim Field took a second place finish with a 48.6 time.

Other performances which resulted in personal bests came from Joe Waible, 35'9" in the shot put, Shawn Linnehan with a 5:22.8 time in the mile run, as well as Bill Erikson with a 5:50 in the same mile run.

Class B State Meet

Tewksbury took eight members of its team to the State Class B Meet held at Reading High School. Kenn Coviello, a sophomore, made his way to the semifinals of the 220 yard dash before he bowed out with a couple of 24.1 performances. Mark Christoffels, the star of the Tewksbury triple jump team all season, fell second fiddle to co-captain Bud MacAllister on this day, as MacAllister took sixth place medal in the meet with a 42'3" jump. Christoffels missed qualifying for the finals with a 40'0" jump.

Richie Lapham continued to improve in his new found event, as he just missed making the finals in the 300 meter low hurdles with a 41.5 time. Ed Piscopo took a last fifth place in the meet with a 51.5 time in the 440 yard run, after a 51.9 semifinal run.

The mile relay team ran a school record 3:33.5 time, but not fast enough to place in the top six. The relay team consisted of Steve Murphy, Richie Lapham, Mark Christoffels and Ed

Gulf rips Doyle's Hardware, 16-3

The Wilmington Softball League is off to a slugging start in this its 29th season. Sunday night, a D and D Gulf romp past Doyle's Hardware highlighted a three game slate, as Dana Mullarky bashed a single, a double and a homerun for five RBI's to spark the winners.

Jim Litwinski, Bill Sinopoli, Bob Aprile and Jim Crowley all slashed hits in support of winning hurler Crowley.

Greg Moulton laced three hits for Doyle's Hardware as Kris Hinxman suffered the defeat.

In other action Sunday night, the Sons of Italy topped Whitney Barrel, 15-2 behind Larry Tympanick's grand slam homer, his second slammer of the week.

Fred Olshaw helped the cause with a single and a triple. Mark Reed pitched the win over Ed Doherty.

North Wilmington Shell rounded out Sunday night action with a 15-2 five inning cruise past Pepsi Cola. Ray Noel was red-hot for the winners with a double, a triple and a homerun. Tom Southmayd was next in line with three hits. Tim Quinn paced Pepsi with a double and a triple off winning chucker Southmayd.

Wilmington Pop Warner registration

The Wilmington Pop Warner Youth Football organization, inactive during the 1984 season, will hold player registrations for all youngsters age eight through 14, with signups scheduled for Monday, June 10 and Wednesday, June 12 from 6 to 8 p.m. both evenings at the Recreation Office of the Town Hall.

These will be the only two registration dates for youngsters to sign up for the 1985 season.

The organization is in need of adult volunteers to assist at all age levels in order to assure a successful program for the upcoming season. It is imperative that parents, adults and friends of Pop Warner football sign up to assist the organization at the time of the two registration dates, June 10 and 12 or there will be no program in 1985.

There are openings for board members, coaches and coordinators at all age levels within the organization.

There will be no registration fee required at the time of the initial registration and if a prospective player is unable to attend th signup, a parent or guardian may register the youngster during the two signup dates.

The Eastern Massachusetts Youth Football Conference has been reorganized into two major divisions for 1985 which will include a small town, as well as large town division. The division breakdown will enable towns of equal population to compete against one another.

Cheerleader registration will be scheduled at a later date, pending the outcome of the player registration.

For additional information, all players, parents or adults interested in participating in the Pop Warner program are urged to contact one of the following board members: Len Howard, 658-6824; Nancy Murphy, 657-7676; or Donna Stanley, 658-6418.

Just a final reminder, that without sufficient support and participation from parents and other adults within the town, there will be no Pop Warner Program in Wilmington for the 1985 season.

Shawsheen Tech swim school

TMHS girls' tennis

Redmen finish strong

The TMHS tennis girls picked up a strong win against Methuen before losing to the second place Chelmsford team during their last week of play. Senior Mary Jennings won her seventh match of the season at third singles by defeating Maura Collopy of Methuen. Lauren Terrazzano and Nancy Thompson easily defeated the Methuen duo at second doubles.

During the season, the second doubles team consisting of either Lauren Terrazzano, Kristin Doherty, Nancy Thompson or Sheila Sullivan compiled an overall winning record of 10-8.

First doubles players Cindy McGill and Karen Hennessey defeated both their Chelmsford and Methuen opponents, bringing their record to an outstanding 12-2. The Tewksbury duo was chosen as Merrimack Valley All Conference honorable mention players.

The Redmen finished their season with a 7-12 record.

Lori Robinson leads the pack in a 100 yard dash run during the North Intermediate School field day Friday. Jill Martyn and Karen Shatto finished second and third respectively in this race.

Recreation Department summer lineup

Red Cross swimming lessons. (Laurie Buzzell and Sandy Craig) ages four and five (clinics); $10 ages six and up (lessons) and adult lessons, $20; two week sessions at Silver Lake and Shawheen Tech.

The clinics will run Monday through Friday, July 1-6 at 10, 11 and 12 o'clock. This program introduces the child to movement and safety in the water.

Beginner lessons are for ages six through 10; advanced beginner for ages seven through 11 who have their beginner card or who can do the crawl for 25 yards; intermediate for ages eight through 12 who have their advanced beginner card or who can do the crawl stroke comfortably for 50 yards, dive, and tread water for three minutes.

Swimmer for ages nine through 14 who have their intermediate card or who can swim 100 yards, dive, tread water for 10 minutes; basic rescue and water safety aide (junior lifesaving) ages 11 to 15 who have all of the above requirements or who can swim 200 yards, dive and tread water for 10 minutes.

Advanced lifesaving for ages 15½ and over who can swim 500 yards, (Cost $25); adult lessons ages 16 and up - beginners or stroke work. Sessions start Monday, July 8, 22 and August 5. Adult lessons begin June 24. Register in person on Wednesday or Thursday, June 5 at 6 to 9 a.m. to noon or 6 to 8 p.m.

Tiny Tots: (Linda Dicey and Ron Colbert) ages four (as of Aug. 31, 1985 through K); $30, three week sessions, Mon., June 24 - Fri., July 12; Monday, July 15 - Fri., Aug. 2 (Public Library.) This is a social - recreational program for those who have not entered first grade. The four-year-olds go in the morning from 9 to 11:30 and the five and six-year-olds attend in the afternoon from noon to 2:30. There are field trips, class photos, snacks, personal shirts, arts and crafts, singing, games, special events. Register in person from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Playground: Ages six through 12 (Completed first grade) free, M-F, 9-12:30 p.m. Monday, July 1, Glen Road area. Discover the new Glen Road Recreation area. There are a lot of young people having fun down there thanks to the Rotary Club, DPW and many others.

This traditional program is for youths who just completed any grade between one and six. Parents may register their child on the playground or children may take home the registration form. There are many exciting special events and tournaments as part of this program. Playground schedules will be distributed before school gets out. This is a good program for volunteer helpers in grades seven, eight and nine. Three leaders and volunteers provide supervision for the children.

Beach: (Ed Woods), Wilmington residents and guests, free, June 29 - Sun., August 25. The public beach at Silver Lake provides the finest natural recreation resource. Qualified lifeguards supervise the facility from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon to 7 p.m. on Sunday. Much physical improvement has taken place in the beach area recently.

Canoe rental: (Ed Woods), Ages 12 and up; $3.00 per hour; $10 epr day, beach hours at Silver Lake. Canoes are available for responsible people to rent at Silver Lake.

Concerts: (Ron Swasey), all ages, free; 7:30 to 9 p.m. on the common. Take the whole family down to the common for an old fashioned evening of live musical entertainment. Concert dates are Wednesdays, June 26, July 10, 17, 24 and 31. Those supporting the program are Aamco Transmissions, F & R Auto Supply Corporation, Koch Membrane Systems, Inc., Duncan Donuts, Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, Analog Devices, Massbank for Savings, Compugraphic Corporation, Charles River Laboratories, Inc. and Realty World Forest - Conant. Raindates are the following nights. June 6 the West Intermediate School will have an ice cream smorgasbord on the common to help the Scott D. Braciska Wilmington High Memorial Scholarship Fund.

Little Red Wagon: (Ron Swasey), everyone should enjoy this return performance of UNH's Theatre Resources for Youth on Thursday, July 18 from 11 a.m. to noon. This lively hour of dramatic entertainment features puppetry, story theatre, music and involvement theatre to delight children of all ages. This production will be held in the Glen Road Pines and is free to the public.

Tennis: (Lisa Cutone), ages nine through adult; $10 adults, $5 youths; Sat., July 13 - Aug. 10 at the Woburn Street School. The youth class (ages nine through 16) will be from 10 to 10:50 a.m. and the adult class will run from 11 to 11:50.

Hampton Beach: Ages 13 and up; $4, Tuesdays, June 25 - July 30, 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. These are popular weekly excursions. Ages 12 and under must be accompanied by an adult. Register in person Monday through Friday from 8:20 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Family units are welcome.

For more information concerning any program, contact Ron Swasey at 658-4270.

Fish derby

Piscopo. Joe Hannon ran a personal best 2.02.2 880 yard run time and just missed placing in the top six.

Two members of the team took fourth place finishes to qualify for the all-state meet the following week. Steve Murphy took a second place in the unseeded heat of the 880 yard run, and fourth place overall. Murphy's time of 2:00.5 was a school record. Doug Noyes qualified for the All-State Meet with a 134"6" toss in the discus throw. In the All-State meet, neither performer was up to par, but their presence was only the beginning of high expectations for next year's squad, as 423½ points out of the 588 points the team scored in their eight dual meets were scored by underclassmen.

All stars
Two members of the Tewksbury squad made the Small School All-Star Team. Senior co-captain Steven Murphy, a consistent performer in the middle distance and races, and junior Ed Piscopo, one of the league's top two in the 440 yard run.

Wilmington Little League from page 17

each by Robbie Smith and Steven Walsh. Rod MacDonald had two hits and there were hits by Danny Bento and Jason Mullen.

Angels 16 Padres 14
The Angels were led by a bases loaded double by Joe Zukas, two hits each by Russ Allard, Wendell Holmes and Tim Allard and a hit by Dan Ballou.

The Padres got good pitching from Michael Moore, fine defense by Nancy Pote, Chris Gray and Wesley Dunham and base hits by Jill Murphy and Brian Surran.

Padres 14 Blue Jays 1
The Padres had good hitting by Steve Walsh and Kelly McLean and good fielding by Jeff Berg, Jay Iannachino and Dan Lutz.

The Blue Jays got good fielding from Rich Dunn and David Carideo and hitting by Eric Robbins.

Royals 10 Rangers 10
The Royals were led by the hitting of Dan Fitzgerald, Kristi Lyman and Paul Ware, and good defense by Eric O'Melia, Jason Gardner and Peter Pellegrini. The Rangers were led by good hitting by Mike Giordano, Jason Early, Steven Lipps and Joe Martinello and good defensive plays by Marc Power and John Delaurey.

Seniors League

Yankees 13 Red Sox 5
Chris Lee went all the way on the mound for the Yankees, striking out nine. Joe Magliozzi, Mike Robichaud and Mark Lee led the Yankees' attack with two hits each. Robichaud and Jonathan Oliver made fine defensive plays.

For the Red Sox, Joey Malfa and Rich DiPerri had two hits each and Jeff Stevenson pitched well in relief.

Rangers 11 White Sox 10
Mark Palmasano went the distance for the Rangers, who were down 10-8 in the last of the seventh when Steve Murray drove home the winning run for the Rangers.

Orioles 20 Rangers 10
The Rangers broke on top with two runs in the second and the Orioles tied it in their half. The Rangers went ahead in the third before the Orioles came back with six of their own. The Rangers came back in the fourth with three more before Rangers starter Mark Vigliotti ran into trouble and gave way to Ryan Churchill, as the Orioles got to both pitchers for nine runs and the victory. The Orioles' starter was Eric Palm and the winning pitcher was Chuck McEwen. Chris McMillan, Scott McMillan, Dave King and Chuck McEwen each had three RBI's.

A's 16 Twins 8
Mullen pitched five good innings. The big bats of the A's were DeFranzo two for three, Killilea three for five, Camel two for three with a sacrifice fly, Mike Lacava two for two.

The big bats for the Twins was Ouellette with two for three. The Twins had three double plays.

Wilmington police news

Three persons were arrested during the evening of May 28 (Tuesday) as a result of default warrants having been issued for non payment of traffic fines. Tewksbury police arrested, on two Wilmington warrants, John Burns Jr. of Tewksbury. Officer LeGrand of Wilmington arrested Michael J. Shaw of Redwood Terrace, Wilmington on a Wilmington warrant. Inspector McKenna arrested Paul Eradi of Stoneham by virtue of a default warrant held by the Holliston police.

Two men were arrested Thursday morning on non support warrants. The arrests were at 5 a.m. as a part of the district attorney's drive on non support cases. Officers Frank Hancock and Jon Shepard arrested George Swartz of 112 Grove Avenue and Wayne Francis of Brentwood Avenue. They were taken directly to the court, later in the morning.

Very early Friday morning Stephan C. Brennan, 182 Main St., was arrested for motor vehicle offenses, by Officer James Peterson. He was charged with operating an unregistered, uninsured motor vehicle, attaching plates, and receiving stolen property.

Robert M. Buck, 2 Chase Road was arrested Thursday evening on a warrant alleging indecent assault and battery. His home was searched on the basis of a search warrant obtained by Juvenile Officer Bob Spencer after a two month investigation. Certain items of evidence were seized at the house by the officers participating in the search.

Participating were Deputy Chief Nally, Lt. LaRivee, Juvenile Officer Spencer, Safety Officer Shelley, Inspectors McKenna and Jepson, along with photographer Officer Waterhouse. Buck's case was continued, next day in Woburn Court to June 14.

Two girls were arrested in the DeMoulas Market Thursday afternoon on shop lifting charges by Officer Joe Duffy, after they had given false identification to store officials.

The girls were released to their parents, pending a court appearance.

Thousands of dollars worth of fireworks were seized Friday afternoon at a home at 77 Lawrence St. The search was the second in two days by search warrant, which culminated an investigation conducted by Officer Bill Gable and Inspector Jepson.

Thomas R. McArdle, 3rd, 37, was arrested at the house. He was charged with keeping fireworks for sale, and with distribution of, and possession of an infernal device. He was also charged with illegal possession of Mass. inspection stickers, and with promotion of lottery in violation of state gaming laws.

Well over 100 cases and boxes of fireworks were seized at the McArdle home, with an estimated value of over $30,000. The confiscated fireworks were loaded into a borrowed trailer truck for storage until the case is completed.

The raid was led by Chief Bobby Stewart along with Deputy Chief Bernard Nally. Assisting were Sgt. George Shepard, and officers Bill Gable, Patrick King and Chris Neville, together with Inspector Mark Jepson and Safety Officer Bob Shelley.

McArdle was bailed, and the case continued to June 29 in Woburn District Court.

William J. Schultz, 20, of Randolph Road was arrested about 5:30 a.m. Sunday by Officer Frank Hancock. He was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol.

Officer Chris Neville arrested Thomas Scolastico of 87 Morse Avenue Monday evening on a default warrant issued by the Woburn District Court.

Trail bikes continue plague property owners all over town. All vehicles, including trail bikes and recreation vehicles have to be registered in order to be able to operate them on any road in town.

Any vehicle not registered and found on a street can cause the operator to be cited, or arrested.

A bike driven on the roads, or over private property, is trespassing. The operator can be cited, and in some cases arrested.

Any damages caused by off-road vehicles to private or public property can end up in court. Substantial fines and restitution can be assessed by the court.

There were three accidents, 26 alarms, 11 arrests and two cases of assault and battery, during the past week. Two cases of break and entry were reported, and three cases of domestic problems.

Police responded to 20 disturbances, two fires, and six cases of larceny. There was one liquor related problem, and one missing person reported, along with two cases of protective custody.

Two motor vehicles were stolen and three were recovered. There were three cases of suspicious activity, three threats reported, two trespassing complaints, six trailbike complaints, and one traffic complaint.

There were eight cases of vandalism, and 10 cases of fireworks being reported. Thirteen cases of larceny were reported including bicycles and cash.

Tours of Harnden Tavern at Strawberry Festival

It will be Strawberry Festival time for the Friends of the Harnden Tavern in North Wilmington next Sunday.

The annual event will take place between 2 and 4 p.m. at the tavern, located on Salem Street, at Woburn Street in North Wilmington. The historic home, built c. 1775, was once the home of Colonel Joshua Harnden, Revolutionary soldier who attained his office in the militia after the war.

It was also the home of the family doctor Silas Brown for several generations. During this period it was an "underground railway station" for runaway slaves. It was in this house that Dr. Jonathan Brown, son of Dr. Silas, was born. He was a Civil War surgeon, serving in Virginia and before that had been a physician in the Tewksbury Hospital, at its very beginning.

Foster Balser, retired scouting official, will be conducting tours of the historic house during the festival. This will be the last function of the Friends of the Tavern during the present season, but they do intend to have an Open House on the first Sunday of each month.

Craft Fair Saturday on the Common

Wooden toys and folk art - gingham and pressed pansies - candlewicking and stuffed mice - teddy bears and silk flowers - tote and Cabbage Patch clothes. All will be part of the League of Women Voters' craft fair.

On Saturday, June 8, the Wilmington League of Women Voters will play host to area craftspeople on Wilmington Common from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. There is no admission fee and local residents are invited to be on hand to support local artists.

Wilmington will be represented by Barbelle and Joyce Brown, Elaine Rappoli, Diane Grasso, Janet Mullen, Nancy Dussault and others. Some participants from Billerica are Pat Montesanti, Ann Marie Fisher, Diane Thompson and Carolyn Seniw. The towns of Chelmsford, Woburn, Haverhill and Arlington will also be represented.

Senior Center ready by July 1

The Wilmington Council on Aging expects to move into the renovated Buzzell School June 30 or July 1. So the Council was told, in its meeting of June 3.

The $39,000 voted by the Town of Wilmington, in the annual townmeeting has been nearly matched by private contributions. The total of private contributions, up to June 3, was $23,173.11, of which so far $4,339.72 has been spent.

In addition there has been a major contribution from General Electric, through the agency of Rep. Jim Miceli.

General Electric personnel is doing work on the bathrooms and plumbing which should be completed before July 1.

Work is going on in three rooms at this time and when they and the bathrooms are completed the building will be completed, the meeting was told.

Engaged to Wilmington man

Mr. and Mrs. Eero J. Hyvonen of Merrimack, N.H. have announced the engagement of their daughter Kirsi Sarah, to Michael Stephen Mazzola, son of Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore M. Mazzola of Linda Road, Wilmington.

Miss Hyvonen graduated from Merrimack High School and from Rivier College with a degree in business. She is currently employed at First Federal Bank as a mortgage loan administrator.

Mr. Mazzola is a graduate of Wilmington High School and holds a B.S. in mechanical engineering from the University of Lowell and a M.B.A. in business from Rivier College. He is currently employed at Sanders Associates as a manufacturing program manager.

A September wedding is planned.

25 years ago

The June 2, 1965 issue of the Town Crier noted that:

Direct distance dialing was scheduled to arrive in Wilmington and North Reading on July 17 - calling without operator assistance would be possible between 50,000,000 telephones in the U.S. and Canada.

Hundreds of tons of sand and scads of work were being used to improve Silver Lake Beach.

Nick DeFelice, chairman of the board of selectmen together with Bill Smith, James Franklin and Town Manager Cecil Lancaster were in New York City visiting the regional office of the Housing and Home Finance Agency of the U.S. Government to discuss Wilmington's urban renewal plan.

A family polio clinic was advertised by the Mass. Board of Health.

Gene Duggan was offering to sell loam at $3.00 a yard, delivered.

It rained 19 days in May for a total of 4.27 inches which was not all that remarkable, but still a fair amount of water.

Charlie Williams of Lowell Street was making a sign for the new police station.

A board of appeals decision would allow a Sunoco station with a sign to be erected across from Cain's garage on Main Street.

Among others, Ralph's Barbershop, Pineridge Cleaners, Coombs Furniture, in North Wilmington; A & M Fenton Real Estate of Lowell Street and Paul Godzyk's Rubbish Removal of Parker Street, must be doing something right - they were advertising in the Town Crier 25 years ago and they are still going strong.

A 1951 Nash four door sedan was offered in the classified column for $100.

Frank Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Hall of Woburn Street and a member of the Class of '57, WHS, was elected president of the junior class at Salem Teachers' College.

Wilmington senior topics

Shut in meals

The Council will be sending out catered meals to shut ins before the end of June. Any shut ins who live alone and have not received a catered dinner before this year, and would like one, should call the Center at 657-7595 or 658-2258.

Navy blue material needed

Members of the arts and crafts program are having an enjoyable time Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to noon making various articles. One of their projects is the making of cobbler aprons for which they have many ordered. Navy blue material is needed - anyone having such material they do not plan to use is urged to contact the center.

1762 seniors

Edie Cunningham, of the senior citizens center reported that 1762 seniors now receive the services of the senior center. Twelve hundred and forty-four

Bowling banquet

This Wednesday the bowlers will close their fall and winter program with a banquet which will begin with cocktails from 6 to 7 p.m. The meal will be served at 7.

Recognition of achievement will be offered to Ed Regione, high single; Bob Trout, high triple and Joe Saparito, low average. Ladies to be recognized are Maggie Imbimbo, high single; Jean Adams, high triple and Jo Saparito, low average. The summer program will begin the following Wednesday.

Respite care

The Department of Elder Affairs has approved funding for respite care to Minuteman Home Care Corp. Respite care is help given to a person caring for a critically ill elderly person. This means a qualified person will enter the home to relieve the person of their duties for a while allowing that person some time for him or herself.

At the present time the director of this program, Gary Davis, has received so many demands for the service that he is in need of more qualified persons to continue to satisfy the demands for help. If you are experienced in nursing or have worked in a nursing home caring for disabled or very ill patients, Gary could use your help. Salary will depend on experience. Please call Gary at Minuteman Home Care, 1-862-6200 for an interview. Several local seniors are in need of respite care.

June social on the 20th

The June therapeutic social will be held June 20. Signups will begin Thursday. A $2.00 deposit will be required when signing up.

WALKER SCHOOL SURVEY

The Town of Wilmington is planning to tear down the Walker School. Built in 1896, the school has been closed for five years, and has begun to deteriorate. But it is still solid and could be saved.

The Town Crier would like to at least see the results of a poll on the building - should it be demolished, or should it be saved. No poll or vote has ever been taken.

The town does not want to put any money into the building. Therefore, a non-profit organization would be a logical means of raising money for restoring the building and making it available as a community center. If there is some support, the Town Crier would be willing to start the ball rolling, and stop the wrecker's ball from swinging.

What do you think about it? Should it be saved? What would you like to see done with the building? What would you like to see done with the lot?

Please take the time to respond to this questionnaire.

Jimmy and Fay Rodolfos' hobby

Quints tickle Woburn pair

By BARBARA HENTSCHEL ADAMS

When 20/20 appeared on television on Feb. 28, a Woburn couple excitedly watched the segment on the Dionne Quintuplets. Jimmy and Fay Rodolfos of Eastern Avenue were happily viewing the old black and white films of the babies because the local couple has one of the largest collections of Dionne quintuplet memorabilia in the country.

At the Woburn Public Library there is a display of dolls which also intrigues the collectors. Among a number of dolls given to the library in 1939 is a set of quints made of rubber, seated on a toboggan, created by Blanche Carter Deering, and dressed in exact replicas of clothing worn in the photo accompanying this article. This photograph was taken when the quints were two years and seven months of age.

The Rodolfos began collecting antique dolls in 1976, and upon investigating their history were intrigued by the lives of the quints whom they recalled from their childhood. The collection quickly grew, as they added more dolls, calendars, souvenirs, photographs, movie stills, soap, dresses, post cards, books and newspaper clippings.

On the weekend of the quint's 50th birthday in 1984, a Quint-vention was held in Burlington, complete with a banquet and sales and swapping tables. A Dionne Quints Collectors Club, originated in 1979, and a nationally distributed newsletter called Quint News are the outcome of this fascinating hobby.

The "Our Natural Heritage" Museum in Lexington featured the quints in an exhibit from March to September 1984 which highlighted the Rodolfos collection.

The quints were born in Corbeil, a burrough next to Calender, Ontario, on May 28, 1934

ROVING

dan ferullo

A friend tells us:

I have the fairest Irish skin you can imagine, and no matter how hard I try to get a good tan during the summer, I always end up looking like the side of a bright red barn.

My friends who tan well tell me it's because of the way I try to get my tan. I wait for the first really nice, hot sunny day in spring, then lie outside for about an hour on my back and then about an hour on my stomach.

If you've ever gotten a serious sunburn, you'll identify with what happens next: Later that day, after I've showered, I realize I've made a mistake. I haven't tanned at all. Instead, I've ended up with four long painful red stripes down my arms and legs, and the reddest darned face, chest and back you've ever laid eyes on.

"You're supposed to lie out for about twenty minutes a day on each side for the first few weeks," friends will tell me, after it's too late. "You don't try to get your tan all in one day. You have to do it gradually." They emphasize "gradually."

A lot of good that advice does me after I've done my first two-hour bake job on myself. So now I'm stuck sitting around indoors, waiting for the burn to subside and waiting for the inevitable - yuck! - peeling to get over with before attempting to go back outside to try again.

Well, the burn eventually does fade, and I finally got through that ugly peeling stage, but this guy is never lucky enough to have at least a slight tanned look remaining after all that. I always get stuck looking as white as before I first went outside in the sun. Most people end up with a little base. But not this guy. Perdue chicken meat should be so white.

So I go back out in the sun for one more try at doing right. And once again I end up burning like a hunk of raw hamburger left on the hibachi too long. I say to

Spaces and aid remain at N. E. colleges

More than 27,000 places — and financial aid — are still available at New England's colleges and universities, for qualified freshmen and transfer students who have not yet been admitted to college. A post-admission survey of 234 New England institutions of higher education by the New England Board of Higher Education (NEBHE) revealed at least 19,000 openings for freshmen, and at least 7,800 for students transferring into upper classes.

Of the 217 institutions responding to the NEBHE survey, 97 percent indicated that financial aid is still available to qualified students.

The 1985 survey reveals a 28 percent increase in spaces available for freshmen and transfer students, compared to results of a similar survey conducted in 1984. NEBHE annually surveys the region's colleges and universities following deadlines for admissions deposits, as a service to the region's high school students.

"The key message to be gathered from these figures," says NEBHE president John C. Hoy, a former college admissions officer, "is that a college education, with financial aid, is still available for motivated students in New England who may not have made a wise decision for the fall of 1985."

"It is essential," he continued, "that students act now if they wish to be admitted to college and receive financial aid. Students must immediately contact their high school guidance officers for the complete NEBHE list of available colleges with openings."

In Massachusetts, a diminishing pool of graduating high school students, coupled with an increasingly complex financial aid picture, has left at least 12,095 vacancies for freshmen and at least 3,977 vacancies for transferring upperclassmen at 76 Massachusetts public and independent two- and four-year institutions of higher education. There are almost 2,000 fewer high school graduates in Massachusetts this year.

Massachusetts institutions also reported very limited availability of dormitory space for entering students.

Additional openings exist at 26 institutions in the region which reported freshmen and transfer places without specifying the number of openings. The New England states currently enroll a total of 800,000 college students.

Many more institutions reported a specific number of vacancies in 1985, compared to 1984. Last year, 58 colleges and universities responded to the NEBHE survey by indicating simply that they were "open," while this year only 26 institutions gave a similar report, indicating that institutions feel a more urgent need to fill a specific number of spaces.

Forty-four four-year institutions, largely independent colleges and universities, report no vacancies for 1985. Twenty-five of those institutions are in Massachusetts.

Interestingly, while New England higher education is clearly beginning to feel the effects of a demographic decline in the available pool of high school graduates, that decline appears to be having the greatest impact on public institutions, and in particular, two-year institutions. More than 65 percent of the freshman openings are in the region's two-year colleges. Public institutions account for 81 percent of all vacancies and the region's public two-year institutions reported 61 percent of all freshman vacancies.

According to NEBHE Vice President Richard King, "As the number of available applicants for admission to colleges declines, students are inclined to make application to more competitive institutions that they otherwise might have."

Learning Center summer programs

To help high school juniors and seniors improve their scores on the Scholastic Aptitude Tests (S.A.T.'s), the Learning Achievement Centers of Wilmington and Arlington are offering five-week S.A.T. Prep. courses this summer.

The S.A.T. Verbal and Math courses focus on test-taking strategies, thinking skills, and review of basic content. Students meet with experienced instructors in small groups to ensure some individualized attention.

If students are particularly weak in one or more S.A.T. skills areas, such as math, reading, or vocabulary, they may take advantage of the tutorial and testing services offered by the Learning Achievement Centers.

For registration or more information, call Steve Goerdit at 631-5354 or write to the Learning Achievement Centers at 173 Church St., Wilmington, MA 01887.

Massbank elects its officers

READING — On Tuesday, April 9 Massbank for Savings held their Annual Meeting of the Corporation. John H. Wood, President, conducted the evening meeting. In John Wood's address to the trustees and corporators of the Bank, he reviewed the past year's financial performance and outlined the strategic plans for the bank in the upcoming year.

Mr. Wood emphasized the financial soundness and stability of MASSBANK for Savings. During the past year, the bank increased its operating profit from $161,000 in 1983 to $1,636,000 in 1984 before taxes. After tax figures were $149,000 for 1983 and $1,240,000 for 1984. The bank's surplus account also increased from $17,793,000 in 1983 to $19,033,000 in 1984.

Mr. Wood spoke briefly on the matter of insurance provided by the Bank to its customers. Being both an F.D.I.C. and D.I.F.M. Bank, MASSBANK for Savings customers are fully insured on their deposit accounts. Given the recent press coverage on the Ohio banking situation, it was felt that MASSBANK for Savings having this insurance had a valuable asset.

In speaking about the assets and liabilities of the bank, Mr. Wood described a bank that was well situated for the future with a well managed and matched portfolio of investments and loans.

The bank's plans for the upcoming year include many progressive and competitive activities. Readbank Properties, Inc., a MASSBANK for Savings subsidiary, is a co-investor in the 66 unit Summit Terrace condominium complex located in Reading, which is nearly sold-out. The bank is currently looking into similar profitable co-development projects in the area.

In addition, MASSBANK for Savings is currently planning an installation of a new computer system to better serve its customers and give the bank flexibility to introduce new products. A new Operations Center to be built at 155 Haven St. in Reading will house the deposit and loan servicing operations and personnel. Other changes are planned for the Melrose, Main St. office, for an interior renovation to bring back the elegance of the office from days gone by.

President Wood concluded his remarks for the evening by stating his thanks to all those persons who had contributed to the success of MASSBANK for Savings during the past year.

Dionne Quintuplets are hobby for Woburn couple

Fay Rodolfos

from S-1

World War II daily items and photographs about their every activity appeared in newspapers all over the world. Newspapers received photographs with publication dates specifically noted so there would be no premature releases. Millions of calendars displayed their picture.

Daily thousands of people, mainly from the U. S., lined up in a U-shaped compound in Ontario to view the babies, protected by mesh screening, and hundreds of types of souvenirs were peddled, including free "fertility stones" taken from the farm property. No cameras were allowed and the many photographs taken at all stages of their lives were the work of official photographer Fred Davis. Even their own father could not take pictures of them.

When the children were returned to their parents at age nine they lived in a mansion with their other brothers and sisters. The Dionnes had six other children, one of whom died. The

Defoe Hospital in which the quint had been reared was then turned into a private school by nuns. In their later years the quint appeared in three Hollywood movies, "Country Doctor" with Gene Hersholt portraying Dr. Defoe, "Five of a Kind" and

"Reunion." Some photographs in the possession of the Rodolfos were given to Julie Davies, a film scriptwriter and autographed by Dr. Defoe who died in 1942. Many articles and some books were written about the girls, including "There Were Five," written by James Brough, a present resident of Chelmsford. The quint also appeared in ads for Baby Ruth, Quaker, Palmolive, Lysol, Borden and many other products.

Emilie died in 1954 at the age of 20, and Marie at 36 in 1970. Mrs. Dionne is still living, but Mr. Dionne died in 1979. Marie, Cecile and Annette have all been married, and divorced. Cecile gave birth to a set of twins, one of whom died.

Artifacts that the Rodolfos would like to have are five gas pump globes owned by the quint's uncle, each one named for a quint. This enthusiastic couple are constantly adding to their collection with trips to flea markets, antique shows and auctions and through word of mouth and advertisements in antique publications. They are presently interested in locating more souvenirs. Their hobby also gave them the unique distinction of having the only Christmas tree in Woburn, and possibly Massachusetts, completely decorated with Dionne quintuplet memorabilia.

Letter to the Editor: Recycling successful

Dear Editor, Middlesex East;

The Wakefield Recycling Committee extends its thanks to citizens of your towns who donated paper to our paper drive on May 18 and 19. Although we didn't collect the tonnage we did in April (63.22), our May collection is estimated at 35-40 tons, which is quite acceptable to us. We will be paid about $500 for the recyclable paper (sad to say, prices have dropped from $15 to $10 a ton for us, with a premium of $5 a ton being paid if our paper is sold overseas.) Only a part of this paper will be going out of the country; the rest will be used domestically.

40 tons of paper will save $908.00 in dumping fees, and another 68 trees from the paper mill. Perhaps our earnings aren't what we'd like them to be; we are still pleased to see what we can save. In 15 monthly drives, we have saved our town about $12,000 in dumping fees, and kept about 1200 trees from the pulp mill. We have also earned about $9,000 from the sale of our paper.

In June, the drive will be held on Saturday and Sunday, June 15 and 16, from 9-3, rain or shine, at the Junior High School, 525 Main St. We ask your citizens to donate newspapers, magazines and phone books to us; their old eyeglasses for the Wakefield Lions vision program; and computer and office paper (bundled separately); We ask that they bring us no cardboard, wire, styrofoam, pizza boxes, cereal boxes, etc. Those are all contaminants, and must be sorted out and disposed of by our very busy workers.

We also remind your citizens that we are there on the third weekend of every month, cheerfully waiting to unload cars and say "Thank you."

Kristen Henshaw,
Chairman WRC

Roving

myself, look, guy, you've already burned and peeled. You're ready to get started on that deep, rich Hollywood tan now. But it never works out that way. My skin has never seen the cover of GQ.

"You've got to use a good sun screen," one of those sun-god friends of mine who resembles Tom Selleck on a bad day told me. "That way you get a nice, deep, rich tan instead of a bad, ugly burn."

A lot of good that advice did me after I burned myself for the second time. I probably wouldn't have taken his advice anyway. I don't like to put all that greasy oil all over my body. So I end up developing a strong dislike for getting out in the sunshine. I begin to look for every excuse in the book to stay inside. I'll tell my friends on the weekend that I need to catch up on my reading. Or the bathtub needs to be scrubbed. Anything to avoid the embarrassment of going through another weekend of burning.

"I hate getting burned on the weekend and then suffering all week long at the office" is the ideal excuse that I come up with weekend in and weekend out.

Or, "The sun is the worst thing for your skin. It ages you." That one always keeps my friends off my back.

I read someplace that if a man were never exposed to the sun from the time he was a baby until he was fifty, at the age of fifty, he'd look twenty. Great, so if you want to stay truly youthful looking, walk around with a black sack over your body.

But the trouble is I like the way people look with - how is it most frequently referred to? - "a little color on the face." The difficulty lies in getting that "color" just right and not ending up resembling a lobster.

I've come up with the perfect alternative to going to the beach while I go through the agonizing attempts to get some "color" on my face. I'm going to build a huge deck onto the rear of my house. Then I'm going to have an artist paint a big mural of a beach scene - replete with waves washing up onto the shore, white sand, blue sky and, oh, yes, even beautiful girls in bikinis - and set it against one end of the deck. I might even throw some real sand on the floor of the deck just to add a touch of realism. Then I'll lie out on my own private "beach" until I get that darned tan just right.

Of course, I haven't had much luck at getting it just right, so I'm not counting on it happening any time in the near future. No, not this summer anyway.

Which brings me to all those great comments you always get from people after you've stupidly lied out in the sun too long.

Lines like, "Get some sun today, Joe?"

No, you turkey, I threw lighter fluid all over my body and set myself on fire.

"Jeez, you like like a lobster!"

Maybe I set out to make myself look like a lobster, you jerk. I worked at getting this red.

"Don't you know how bad all that sun is for your skin? You should use some kind of lotion."

I enjoy abusing my body, idiot. And using a protective sun screen would only ruin the thrill of all that self-abuse. I want to feel pain. I also enjoy paying full price for my automobiles, food and clothes.

"You get redder by the minute. You look like you're going to pop."

I'm going to pop, all right. Your face, if you don't shut up.

Well, I guess I really should pay more attention to what all these experts say about getting sun in the incorrect manner. After all, I don't really want to end up with skin cancer (isn't that what the experts say will happen if you don't take in the sun in a proper fashion?).

And I really do hate all that suffering I go through right after I've been out in the sun too long. The burning, the chills. I go to bed that night, stretched out in a spread-eagle position, and stay that way for twelve straight hours. I not only wake up with the burning sensation worse than ever, I've a bunch of stiff muscles that won't loosen up for a week.

Someone always convinces me to put on some Jergens cream to help soothe the burn. I go to bed the second night, stretch out in the same spread-eagle position, only this time I'm doubly afraid to move because I think I'm going to slide off the bed!

ST. FRANCIS INSTITUTE

"There is a way which is just as effective and at least one third of the cost of private tutoring which, for want of a better word, may be called Group Tutoring," explained Fr. Lucius Anese, Director of The St. Francis Institute in Andover. Basically, the method involves an initial assessment session followed by recommendations and then instruction of students in small groups. The instruction is given after the fashion of programmed learning adapted to the group setting in order to accomplish behavioral, verbal and quantitative, learning objectives. The Institute aims to tailor-cut its instruction to the particular needs of the individual student. This procedure is less costly and can be just as effective as private tutoring. However, The Institute continues to offer the opportunity for students to take private tutoring for special reasons.

Subjects taught are Mathematics, Sciences, Languages, English, S.S.A.T., S.A.T., P.S.A.T., and L.S.A.T. For other subjects, please inquire further. Groups and individuals are particularly encouraged to enroll during this time before the final examinations.

Fr. Anese is a graduate of The School of Education of Boston University and of The School of Government at Tufts University. Among the three books which he wrote, Write and Publish is particularly relevant to the learning and mastering of the organizational skills in writing.

For further inquiry or to enroll write to The St. Francis Institute, P.O. Box 263, Andover, Ma. 01810 or call The St. Francis Institute in Andover at (617) 851-7910.

SOMETHING VENTURED, SOMETHING GAINED

Women entrepreneurs have made great strides over the past six years, showing a startling 329% increase in successful businesses. But a gap is being created in the course of events because a disproportionate number of these businesses are not corporate enterprises, but rather pink collar companies with limited growth potential. Monumental strides have been hindered due to a lack of knowledge and experience, and ready access to the network capabilities which men have taken for granted for millennia.

In response to this growing problem, the Women's Equity Program, Massachusetts Small Business Development Center, the Massachusetts Department of Commerce, and the US Small Business Administration have joined forces to sponsor a program for established businesswomen, to spark an awareness of long-term financial opportunities, growth orientation, and employment generation.

The weekend seminar, entitled Something Ventured, Something Gained, to be held June 13, 14 and 15 at Wellesley College, will focus on risk-taking and corporate development with the intention of pumping new blood into the mini-mainstream of female mavericks.

The forum will include guest speakers Evelyn F. Murphy, Secretary of Economic Affairs for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and Joan Sweeney, Ph.D., noted psychologist and Co-Director of the Women's Equity Program. Registration, contact Linda Noonan at (617) 727-6875, Brenda Bergstrom at (413) 737-6712, or Joan Sweeney at (413) 545-1558.

NOBS

North of Boston Singles Club (NOBS), a nonprofit organization was formed seventeen years ago so that singles of all ages may join together with other singles to socialize. NOBS is the Number One singles social organization on the North Shore. Dance and socialize every Friday at the V.F.W. Hall, Main Street, Saugus (behind K-Mart). NOBS is open to all singles and dancing is to live entertainment with a donation of $4.00 for non-members. It's a great place to meet new friends for 8:30 P.M. till 12:30 A.M. Proper dress required.

Membership in NOBS is $10 per year, which includes discount prices or free admittances to events and the monthly publications, The Hob-Nobber. The club's functions, besides the weekly dances, include ski chalet weekends, hayrides, tennis parties, bowling, dinners, shows, etc. New ideas for new events are welcome at all times, and if enough interest is shown they become regular fare.

Come to our dance this Friday or write for further information to: NOBS, Box 94, Swampscott, Ma. 01907 or call Bernie at 595-8616, days.

WOMEN'S NETWORK LUNCHEON

The Middlesex Community College Women's Network will hold a luncheon meeting at the Lord Bedford Motor Inn on Thursday, June 13, from 11:45 to 2:00 P.M. ## BATTERED WOMEN

The Waltham Battered

Women Support Committee, Inc., is a non-profit organization which provides emergency shelter, support groups, and other services for battered women and their children. The support committee needs volunteers to staff the hotline and shelter, especially at night, and to help with childcare and office work. They will hold a volunteer training program from June 1st through June 13. For information call the hotline: 899-8676.

MCC

Summer Semester programs at Middlesex Community College, Division of Continuing Education/Community Services will begin on June 10. Many of our most popular courses, workshops and seminars will be offered evenings and Saturdays during June and July. There are a number of non-credit offerings in the areas of career and personal development, small business seminars and leisure living workshops.

Of special interest this summer are Shifting Gears to Technical Writing, a one-day seminar to explore this new career field and Investment Alternatives in 1985, a one-day discussion on how to deal with today's changing financial climate. Owning, Understanding and Managing a Small Business is planned to aid the person who is seriously considering starting a small business to recognize and avoid problem areas. Speed Reading is designed for the student or professional who would like to read faster and comprehend more. All of these courses begin the week of June 10. For the second year, A&D Toy-Train Village will honor Father's Day by admitting free any dad accompanied by at least one paying guest.

"This is only as it should be," says Founder Adolf W. Arnold, "because toy trains are usually bought by fathers on the pretext that they are for their sons, as I did. Toy trains are for people of all ages."

Beginning its second year of operation, A&D Toy-Train Village has already been host to more than 19,000 visitors from practically every state of the Union and from several foreign countries, including Mexico, Germany, Russia, England, Canada, and Saudi Arabia.

Visitors will thrill to more than 43 operating trains in a variety of backgrounds including the 34-foot, six-level master layout with 24 computer-controlled trains. Besides the operating trains, there are 35 permanent exhibits featuring more than 2,000 toy trains from 19 different countries, ranging in age from 1850 to the present. Exhibits include a woodshop with working elves, cowboys and Indians, circus trains, a 20-foot scale model oil refinery, six overhead trains, an interurban trolley car, and a separate layout for children of all ages to operate.

There will be a display of lead crystal and novelty glass trains, a new toy Swiss cog locomotive (a first of its kind in this country), a German urban scene with three operating scale model trains, and several other innovations.

A&D Toy-Train Village and Railway Museum is located at 49 Plymouth Street, Middleboro, Ma. Plymouth Street is two miles north of the Middleboro rotary on Route 18 and 28. The Museum is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is $2.50 for adults, $2.00 for Seniors, and $1.25 for children 5-12. For further information, phone (617) 947-5303.

GARDEN FLOWER SHOW

On Saturday, June 15, the North Reading Garden Club will host a Standard Home and Garden Flower Show and House Tour. Seven homes and five gardens are included in the tour. The historic Putnam House and Herb Garden will be featured along with houses ranging from a 1756 colonial farm house to a 1983 contemporary ranch.

Advance tickets are $5.00 and are available from Nancy Surette at 664-4185 or from any club member. Tickets on the tour day will be $6.00 and available at the Putnam House on Bow Street, North Reading.

Refreshments will be served from 1:00 to 3:00. The hours for the tour will be 11:00 to 5:00.

Guests are requested to wear low heels for their comfort and the protection of the homes and gardens. Adults only, please.

AUDITIONS "A CHORUS LINE"

Coming out of a very successful "Fiddler on the Roof," Paul D. Greene, resident director of the North Reading Theatre Workshop is announcing auditions for "A Chorus Line." This fabulously acclaimed show is the longest running musical on Broadway and while still setting records is being released in a few selected areas. "A Chorus Line" is based on the lives and experiences of a Broadway cast from auditions to opening night. The original Broadway production was conceived, choreographed and directed by Michael Bennett with music by Marvin Hamlisch and lyrics by Edward Kleban. One of the many reasons "A Chorus Line" remains popular is because of such well known songs as One and What I Did For Love.

Auditions for "A Chorus Line" are being held at the Daniel H. Shay Auditorium at the North Reading High School, Route 62, North Reading, at 6:30 June 10, 11 and 13 with call backs to be announced by the director. Show dates are scheduled for September 14, 15, 20 and 21. Come prepared to sing a song from the show and dance a short routine. Also bring a recent resume and an 8 x 10 black and white glossy. There are 26 plus for both male and female singers and dancers.

If interested in auditioning and are unable to attend because of the dates please call 664-3949 for more information.

This program is supported in part by a grant from the Massachusetts Art Lottery as administered by the North Reading Arts Council.

BABY PHOTO CONTEST

As part of the March of Dimes Third Annual Telethon, DyDee Diaper Service will be sponsoring the first "Babies Are Beautiful" Photo Contest. Photographs of children in four age categories will be on display over the Telethon weekend - June 29th and 30th at the Sheraton Boston Hotel. The public will be invited to cast their vote for a $1.00 donation to the March of Dimes.

The age categories for the competition are: Birth-four months; four months-eight months; eight months-one year; and one year and older. Each photo must be accompanied by an official entry form. The entry fee is a $5.00 tax deductible donation to the March of Dimes.

Winners in each of the categories will receive a prize package provided by DyDee Service, The H.J. Heinz Company and Child World. The winners names will be announced on the Telethon to air locally on WLVI-TV Channel 56. In addition, Red Sox and Bruins tickets will be awarded in a random drawing of all those voting.

For entry forms and official rules or additional information, please call the March of Dimes at 329-1360.

To improve basic skills in language arts and math, the Learning Achievement Centers of Arlington and Wilmington are once again offering individualized educational programs this summer for students Grades K-12.

Join the fun — biking at Lowell National Park

Bring your own bike and picnic snack for an evening exploration of Lowell! "Knapsack Tours" will travel little-known byways to discover canals and rivers, mills and mansions, and neighborhoods of the industrial city. The tours will be offered on Friday evenings at 6 p.m. beginning May 31. All tours are approximately two hours in length and depart from the Park Visitor Center in the Market Mills Complex unless otherwise noted. Space on tours is limited, and reservations are required. Families are invited!

The Tours are:
"THE MILE OF MILLS ON THE MERRIMACK" - A bike tour along the canal side fronts of the mills, over the Aiken Street Bridge, and down the river-side trail with the best view of the Mile of Mills and the mouth of the Concord River. Frequent stops for interpretation and a picnic snack. May 31 and July 12.

"DAM THE RIVER" - A bike tour from Guard Locks and one side of the dam to the other, and up along the river side trail with superb views of the dam, Pawtucket Canal, and the mill pond/river created by Lowell's founders. Many breaks for interpretation and picnic snack. The final stop is a visit of the state-of-the-art hydroelectric project under construction on the river. June 7 and July 19.

"BOAT THE RIVER" - A boat tour from Guard Locks up-river to Tyng's Island, presenting views reminiscent of what the Merrimack Valley was like before the mills were planted in the new city of Lowell. Indian culture sites, the Middlesex, Northern, and Pawtucket Canals, and the Pawtucket Dam Diagnostic testing, study skills, S.A.T. and S.S.A.T. Prep. courses will also be offered.

Students attend two-hour classes one or more times per week in the mornings, afternoons, or evenings.

For registration or more information, call Steve or Melissa Goerdt at 631-5354 or write to the Learning Achievement Centers at 6 Merrill Rd., Marblehead, MA 01945.

on the site of the o Falls will be seen on a relaxing ride in the wake of Thoreau's boat in the early 19th Century. Meet at Guard Locks. Bring a picnic snack. June 14 and July 26.

"TOP TO BOTTOM - THE NORTHERN CANAL" - A hiking tour to take advantage of a rare opportunity to see this landmark power canal drained of water. Unique views of the Merrimack River and the canal will provide a superb backdrop for interpretation of these water-ways and the "why" and "how" of this canal-building feat of the 1840's. Great views of the new hydroelectric plant being built between the canal and the river will also be included. Meet in front of the Wannalancit Office & Technology Center on Suffolk Street. Bring a picnic snack. June 21 and August 2.

"UP THE CONCORD" - A bike tour from the mouth of the Concord River at the Merrimack past important mill sites, Lower Locks on the Pawtucket Canal, and forgotten canals and mills on the River Meadow Brook. Many stops for interpretation and picnic snack. June 28 and August 9.

"MILLS-TO-MANSIONS" - A bike tour by major mills, early corporate housing for workers and managers, and later mansions built for the industrialists on the hills above the clamor and the smoke down by the canals. Many breaks for interpretation and picnic snack. July 5 and August 16.

For tour reservations and information, contact Lowell National Historical Park, 169 Merrimack Street, Lowell, Ma. 01852, telephone (617) 459-1000.

Trivia

In 1965 it was discovered that without international scientific cooperation, the world's largest land-dwelling carnivore - the polar bear - would become extinct in less than 10 years, reports International Wildlife magazine. Thanks to a kind of detente between the United States, the Soviet Union, Greenland, Norway and Canada, today the polar bear is alive and well, with a growing population of around 25,000 bears.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

A surprised Frank Kelley, Wilmington High School math teacher for the past 25 years was ushered into the Sons of Italy Hall by Jack Cushing and Ken Spinelli just in time to hear Michael Cairra announce that he, Frank Kelley, was chosen "Good Guy for 1985." Mr. Kelley is also one of the premier track coaches in the state. Mike Esposito, recent Boston College football great describes the unique Frank Kelley this way. "He enthusiastically supported even the slowest runner on the team and was on your side no matter whether someone took first place or last place." My nephew, Dean Murphy was inter-scholastic champion in the 100 yard dash but somehow couldn't summon up the "go power" to walk out with the trash!

Linda Giles of Woburn St., Wilmington, is the first woman to serve as a Wilmington firefighter. She had previously worked as a firefighter in Shippenburg, Pa. Linda, this is my prayer for you and for all the gallant firefighters everywhere.

Oh Lord, this is my daily prayer for firefighters everywhere, please guide them as fires burn, and grant for them a safe return.

My Aunt Maria called the fire department years ago and said, "I want to report a fire." "OK, calm down lady and tell me how are we going to get there?" "Good grief," she exclaimed, "don't you have those big red trucks anymore?"

Can you imagine mushrooms selling for $100 a pound? Well that is the going price for a particular kind called Morel Mushrooms. Well I wouldn't buy or eat the darn things if the sold for $10 a ton. A neighbor of ours years ago was Catherine Della Croce who picked the wild mushrooms every late summer and fall and would generously share them with my father who loved to eat them. The only drawback was that he was afraid of them because many of them can be poisonous. He devised what he thought was a secret formula for testing them. He would let my mother eat them first (always claiming that he wasn't quite hungry at that time.) The next day seeing that my mother was alright he would devour the whole mess of them. What he didn't take into account was that my mother was an O'Donnell and twice as smart as he was, so the mushrooms she ate were from the previous batch that she had saved in the refrigerator so in fact he was doing his own testing. Incidentally, the Morel Mushrooms were found growing recently in Ernest and Dora Ardolino's yard in Wilmington.

I am proud of the many high school young men and women who are recipients of various awards given for attaining high scholastic grades throughout the high school years. Principal Thomas Ryan announced in the annual senior assembly at Stoneham High School that the winners of the MacDonald Award were Christine Bracciotti and Guarino Milinaro. Congratulations!

When I graduated from high school I enlisted in the Navy. When the recruiting officer looked over my records and grades he immediately recommended me for the "Submarine Service," saying that I had excellent qualifications for that branch of the service. I respectfully asked how he came to that conclusion. "It's elementary young man, your grades are 'below C Level'."

Retired Fire Chief Arnold Eydenberg was told by Bill Burton that he was holding up the golf game looking for a lost ball in the rough. "I'm not looking for the ball," he said, "I've found that I can't find my darn golf club!"

The waiter asked my friend Vinny Harrington of Reading, "how did you find the steak Sir?" "Oh," exclaimed Vinny, "it wasn't any trouble at all."

Iron Lady now offering new objectives for women

IronLady, the new fitness spa for women is offering four objectives. Leaner and stronger body mass, nutrition, better self-image and renewed vitality.

Ed Kehoe of IronLady says, "The ideal body comes in many shapes. It may be classic with sculptured features, elegant neck and long supple torso; or it may be athletic with strength and robust health; or it may be soft and cozy. However the body is or was, nature is conspiring against the body. You know the scenario, today's women have discovered there is hope. Resistance is the most efficient builder of strength and lean body tissue in terms of time invested and tangible results.

There are too many examples of women who have made themselves fit and reversed the aging process to recite names.

Do you know who that person is who is hiding deep within your just moved the potato and there it was!"

Truthfully folks, if you had to fire a person would you "hire yourself?"

Success is not measured by the money you make but by the happiness you generate.

I never in the world had ever met an Irish tailor. Well, I met one last week in Burlington at Ostunisi. The sign in the window said "Tom Burke CPA." "Tom, I said, "to me CPA means Certified Public Accountant." "For me," said Tom, "it means cleaning, pressing and alterations." Gasper, one of the owners told me that Tom has a "vested" interest in the business. Frank Guiliano, a Winchester plumber had an "elbow" repaired on his sport coat. Richy Harrington an Arlington painter had "two coats" cleaned and pressed, and John Mullen a retired Edison electrician had his "light suit" altered. When John tried to pay with his "charge plate" Tom was "shocked" because he accepts cash only and no "cuffs." I "button-holed" Tom and told him that this is the end of the skit because I'm at the end of my "rope." "That's where you should be with jokes like that," Tom said.

Being Frank and Ernest can sometimes get you in trouble especially if you are Frank in Woburn and Ernest in Burlington. Any man who accumulates enough money to be filthy rich, but has not known true love is hopelessly poor indeed. Some women who marry for money repent in "mink."

It's about that time of the year when I walk the bounds of the Middlesex East area in which I write, so I started off in Woburn last week and I hope to cover all ten cities and towns. I don't think I've ever met a more sparkling, effervescent and enthusiastic young man like Spike Boyle. Just knowing Spike only two minutes I would recommend him for Secretary of State. Standing there on Main Street I could easily spot who the home owners were. They were the ones either going in or coming out of Woburn Supply. I met Dennis Tully coming out of Leonard's Furniture and he said he just came back from Bermuda. He got a beautiful tan.

body? Combine exercise and nutrition and free that person. Let her take advantage of what IronLady has to offer. IronLady is dedicated to health and beauty.

Find out the benefits of minerals, fiber and vitamins in your diet. IronLadies carry on a non-stop love affair with foods that fuel the body properly. Today's medical advice on weight loss for the longest benefit asks that exercise be the superior method of calorie depletion.

Better appearance and self-image are yours if you want them. It is time to make a positive change in how you look and feel, so come on in and get a blast of renewed vitality. IronLady's suggestions can be rewarding to a woman's physical as well as mental well-being.

Summer volunteers needed desperately

If you have the time to spend a day at the beach, go on a picnic, take in a movie or plan a similar activity, we've got the kids who'd like to go along.

Neighbor Network, a program of the Woburn Council of Social Concern, provides emergency temporary foster care for neglected, abandoned, and abused youth, ages 11-18. Neighbor Network serves Arlington, Acton, Burlington, Concord, Lexington, Wilmington, Winchester and Woburn.

Activities volunteers are urgently needed to share some of their leisure time. It is especially important to provide supportive, structured, and fun activities over the summer months when there are great blocks of free time. All volunteers receive training and supervision.

For more information, please call: Claudia Dunne, Woburn Council of Social Concern, 935-6495. We need you. All you need is a sense of fun and a desire to help.

Tidbits

The Rastafarians believe that God, whom they call Jah, was incarnated as the late Emperor of Ethiopia, Haile Selassie, says National Geographic. Many of them think he walks today as a man among men in another identity.

Fletch - Lily in Love - A View to Kill

Fletch Starring Chevy Chase, Joe Don Baker, Dana Wheeler-Nicholson, Richard Libertini, Tim Matheson. Directed by Michael Ritchie. Produced by Alan Greisman and Peter Douglas. Screenplay by Andrew Bergman. Based upon the novel by Gregory McDonald. Rated PG (profanity).

Although Fletch the movie is considerably different from "Fletch" the novel, it retains some of the book's elements of mystery and comic atmosphere. Of course, mysteries have changed considerably, and any one who has read the Gregory McDonald mystery upon which this film is based can attest to the fact that I. M. Fletch is not a hard boiled, macho, trench-coated gumshoe.

Fletch is a perfect example of the new mystery man. He is sometimes suave, often sarcastic and always witty, with little respect for authority. And, believe it or not, he is played by Chevy Chase. For those of us who have read the Fletch series with delight, the thought of clownish Chase as the flip, handsome Fletch did not seem appropriate. And in some instances, he is not. Chase is at his best when relying on his deadpanning talents while spouting the dialogue based on McDonald's wonderfully rebellious repartee. But when director Michael Ritchie relies upon sight gags and ridiculous disguises, Chase is reduced to the lowbrow humor usually found in his sophomoric comedies.

Fletch, a reporter for a California newspaper, is trying to uncover a drug ring in a wealthy suburb by posing as a beach bum. During his investigation, he is approached by a wealthy, young businessman (Tim Matheson) who wants Fletch to kill him for a goodly sum of money. Fletch has about a week to learn why this man wants to die while he tries to finish his drug story to please his bulldog of an editor (Richard Libertini).

Although there is no denying that the film is entertaining in an airhead sort of way, Fletch is mostly a disappointment. Ritchie and Chase go for the cheap laughs, ignoring the fact that the leading role required a stronger actor than Chase. The strong points of this film should have been witty banter and decent performances, not ridiculous disguises and dream sequences.

Lily in Love Starring Christopher Plummer, Maggie Smith, Elke Sommer, Adolph Green. Directed by Karoly Makk. Produced by Robert Halmi. Screenplay by Frank Cucci. Rated PG-13. (Profanity)

Lily in Love is a euphoric, silly film that bubbles along from one exaggeration to another, finally exploding in a contrived, adorable ending that will leave you smiling. This clever piece of fluff is the perfect prescription for anyone who really needs to escape the approaching hot weather or a wearisome job.

Maggie Smith stars as Lily Wynn, a successful writer who has just completed a screenplay that she does not want her husband to star in. Normally, she writes his plays and films, but he is a Shakespearean ham, and not at all the gentle, European that the script calls for.

Christopher Plummer is Fitzroy Wynn, the actor whose performances tend to go over the top, as the British are wont to say. However, Fitz is a ham with a brain, and trowels on the make-up to pass himself off as the blonde, well-bred Italian, Roberto Terranova, who lands the role in Lily's play and a place in Lily's heart.

The transformation is amazing, and may lightning strike down any voting member of the American Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences who does not nominate Plummer for the best actor's award. As Terranova, he is a suave European who doesn't know a word of Italian, but fakes it anyway. As Fitz, Plummer uses his body as well as his lashing tongue to make us laugh.

Smith gives a fine comic performance, as usual, and a pleasant surprise comes in the form of Adolph Green, once half of a comedy team with Betty Comden. It is nice to know that this pleasant man with his comical face is still alive and kicking. — he hasn't done much lately and he's too talented to retire.

As far as the plot is concerned, don't expect anything deep and meaningful, or even less than preposterous. But, the acting is stupendous and the dialogue is often biting and clever, make Lily in Love more fun than the proverbial barrel of monkeys.

Bond is not battling the Commies this time, but a former KGB agent, Zorin, who wants to corner the market on microchips by sinking California's Silicon Valley and selling his own chips at an enormous profit. Walken makes this part his own. He plays a blonde, Germanic psychopath—who knows he's a psychopath, and is enjoying himself anyway. Walken's chortal in the face of danger and destruction is worth the price of admission.

Sinewy, panther-like Grace Jones is less offensive than usual as May Day, Zorin's amour and assassin. Jones is much more restrained than in previous screen appearances, and is quite stunning with her asymmetrical features and striking costumes. She quite overshadows Tanya Roberts, who is supposed to be the female lead. This is really not surprising, however, as Roberts has always been a milquetoast.

Also, the Bond films have not joined the feminist world of the '80s as yet, so it can be safe to bet that Roberts was chosen more for her physical talents than her magnetism. Chases abound from the opening credits to a treacherous steeplechase outside magnificent stables and estates in France. However, as the film progresses, the chases grow rather wearisome and the pace begins to drag. Gray hair and a slower gait may mean the imminent retirement of Roger Moore as the dapper, over-sexed spy. Rumor has it that Pierce

Brosnan (Remington Steele) may be asked to step into the role. Time will tell. Only one thing we ticket holders can be sure of:

James Bond will return in another film (or so says the final credit!).

Students urged to give blood

During the summer months, high schools close and a majority of the local college population migrates to vacation spots. As a result, the number of available blood donors in the area decreases.

Summer is a time of anticipation for vacationers, but not for hospital patients in need of blood. "Students donate approximately 19 percent of all the blood collected in this area," said Joyce Foley, Donor Resources Development Manager/Northeastern Massachusetts location of the American Red Cross Blood Services - Northeast Region. "With the absence of student donors, the blood supply is seriously affected," she said.

"High school and college campus blood drives provide a convenient opportunity for students to donate blood," said Foley. "But, once students finish their school year, many do not donate blood again until September when classes and regularly-scheduled school blood drives resume. It's important for students and other blood donors who leave their hometowns and campuses, to continue to support and contribute to the community blood supply," said Foley.

For more information on where you can go to donate blood, call the American Red Cross toll-free at 1-800-442-2053.

You can work wonders. Give blood.

A two wheel view of life on the open road

By JIM ROUILLARD

Bikers.
What does the word evoke? Hell's Angels? Rowdiness? Mad Max and the Road Warrior?

Until meeting Stoneham's Marc Zappa, all those images might have come to mind, for this writer at least, but a chance encounter atop New Hampshire's Cathedral Ledge and a quiet, informative interview with the 27-year-old "bikie" and roving mechanic, helped to dispel a lot of the clichés about bikers and their machines.

The German inventor Gottlieb Daimler — better known for the creation of luxury cars — was probably the first person to design a practical motorcycle, in 1885, according to researcher John Ashworth.

At first, motorcycling was the exclusive sport of young and athletic men and boys, Ashworth wrote, since the engine was connected directly to the front or rear wheel. It was necessary first to run with the machine to turn over and start the engine, then to spring quickly into the saddle before the vehicle ran away with itself.

Motorcycles have evolved and cyclists have changed considerably since those early years — with a generally expanding appeal to a broader age and interest group, and to include women bikers as well, according to Zappa.

But the swift and gleaming chrome and steel machines are still not to be mounted lightly or with a cavalier spirit, Zappa said, "since it takes a deal of training and proper attention to know how to drive a bike, how to ride as a passenger, and especially how to handle an emergency, in a slide or a throw from a cycle."

"When you start sliding," he said, on sand, gravel, or a wet slick, "the best thing is to get the bike away from you as fast and efficiently as possible. Once, my brakes locked when I was going at a pretty high speed, and the bike started to go into a slide. I let go, kicked the machine away from me — and came away, luckily, without even a sand burn or scratch from the gravel I hit."

"The key is like in falling: stay loose, and above all, quickly get the bike as far away from you as possible."

"The motorcycling fraternity," according to Ashworth, "has always included daring spirits eager to attempt the near impossible with a machine. Hill-climbing contests are generally held on 45 degree slopes."

From a standing start, competitors mount and try to ride to the top as fast as possible.

"Often they strip the machines of all surplus parts to reduce weight, even sawing off the cooling fins of the engine."

Since the earth is soon churned up and softened, the motorcycles slew wildly, and riders are often thrown.

"Usually the rules require that a thong be attached to the wrist of each rider so that if he is thrown, the thong yanks out of a clip connected with the ignition and 'shorts' the engine. Because of this precaution, the motorcycle cannot churn about on top of the rider, or dash into the crowd."

A sensible precaution, Zappa said, adding that he doesn't engage much now in such uphill dirt-biking competition, and that he couldn't stress enough the importance of being prepared for any emergency: "It's essential to know how to handle it if trouble develops."

Zappa, who grew up in the placid, suburban Robin Hood School section of Stoneham, on curving, shady Forest Street half a mile behind Redstone Shopping Center, also argues for the proper place and time for motorcycling, which does not include ripping up parklands or racing on a screaming engine through a declining, delicate woodland ecology like the dirt paths of the Middlesex Fells.

As intelligent, persuasive, and realistic spokesman for the pleasures and problems of experiencing the open road aboard a Yamaha 1100, Zappa went on to explain some of the pros and cons of motorcycle transport.

Among the pros: bikes are quick and maneuverable, economical, fuel-efficient and exhilarating.

They're also miserable to ride in the rain and cold weather, carry only one passenger plus the driver, provide very little luggage space, and can be very dangerous for the unskilled or unwary.

"Your whole attitude changes when you're on a motorcycle," said the lean and rangy, moustachioed young man who had wanted his own motorcycle as early as the age of four.

"You see more scenery; you're outside, in the wind and the air and the weather; you feel more on a bike — more at one with the world and the road."

"It's more fun to go up a mountain road on a motorcycle, and you can park it easier and in places that wouldn't be accessible to a car."

"And you learn about people by watching their driving habits. You get to know by instinct what another person will do. Just by looking at him in a car, you can intuit his driving behavior and patterns, and even understand something of his mental attitude."

One aspect Zappa said he doesn't like about biking is that "In many people's minds, you're automatically characterized as 'bad,' simply by being on a motorcycle."

His experience and observations as a biker have led him to class other drivers in three primary categories:

1.) Other bikers, who may be driving cars, but who, Zappa knows, have their own bikes, because they provide the motorcyclist exceptional courtesy and room on the highway.

2.) Non-bikers, who are polite and simply disinterested.

And then there are the worst:

3.) Discourteous drivers, who won't give the cyclist courtesy or road space. "They're like the types who take pleasure in running over little animals," Zappa said. "It's the same sort of mentality."

"In my experience, people who drive motorcycles are friendly to each other. They'll wave and smile. But there are a lot of people who have the notion that if you're not in a car — if you're on a bicycle or a motorcycle — you simply don't belong on the road. It's a strange attitude."

Zappa said it's good to see a broader range of people riding bicycles and motorcycles: bankers, students, housewives. There's even a group of New Hampshire motorcyclists, he mentioned, called the White Mountain Riders, most of whom are age 50 or older.

Zappa was touring parts of the New Hampshire White Mountains with some biker friends from Woburn, Chelmsford and North Andover when he met on Cathedral Ledge. In the parking area, asking questions about the various machines, this writer made a gesture towards a Kawasaki 1000.

"Don't touch," Zappa quickly cautioned, with a tolerant grin. "Never touch a biker's machine." It may be rigged with a pulse alarm, he said, which could be set off by a passing squirrel — let alone the touch of a human hand.

Why dress in leather?

"Well," Zappa said, "some of the young kids wear it to look tough. You know the James Dean syndrome, between 14 and 23: you've got to rebel and be different. You have a different feeling about yourself, depending on the way you dress — a three-piece suit versus jeans, for instance — and it's true you can tell a little bit about a person by the way he dresses."

"But leather provides warmth and protection against the wind. It makes sense." The day was a warm one, by the way, with Zappa garbed in cooler clothes: corduroy jeans, tee-shirt, leather vest and brown cowboy boots.

Two of the best things Zappa likes about biking? "Freedom," he said, "and the people I meet on the road."

"Light-hearted I take to the open road."

Healthy, free, the world before me...

Leading wherever I choose...

Henceforth I ask not good fortune.

Henceforth I whimper no more...

Done with indoor complaints...

Strong and content I take to the open road."

—Walt Whitman, from

Fathers: making the moments count

It's best to stay away from long hours of TV and too many movies, activities permitting little parent-child interaction

By Deborah Churchman
Special to The Christian Science Monitor

WHETHER you're a divorced dad with weekend or seasonal child-care duties or an overworked father trying to grab a little one-on-one time with your children, chances are you can sympathize with the man who came to Dorothy Rich, founder of the Home and School Institute, and said, "I'm so tired of taking the kids to the zoo. Is there anything else to do?"

Many who are fathers today don't have a lot of memories to draw on of lengthy days spent with their own fathers. Raised in an era which saw a father's input as largely limited to money, discipline, and sports, today's fathers are often caught in the bind, says Dr. Rich, of wanting to do more and not knowing how.

Combine this situation with the growing number of divorced fathers who, since they see their children infrequently, want to cram those precious moments with exciting, kid-approved activities.

Morris Shepard and Gerald Goldman, authors of "Divorced Dads" (Chilton Book Company, 1979), refer to this approach as the "Disneyland Dad syndrome," and warn that such activities soon pale.

"When you combine your highly anticipated arrival with some exciting events and junk food, you surely have a winner," they write of the thinking behind this syndrome.

"However, when you do it every weekend it becomes as stale as fast food three minutes out of the ultraviolet warmer."

They advise that fathers stay away from passive observation activities — like movies, TV, or the circus — that put them in the same place as their children but allow little or no interaction.

Dr. Rich agrees, though she credits the motives of these fathers: "At least sitting with their children in the movie shows that they care."

She suggests instead that fathers ask, "What have I got within my own daily life experience that I can share?" Time sharing needn't be dramatic, she points out.

"Try paying the bills with the child, telling him, 'This bill is for the heat, how much do you think it is?' Children are invariably off by a long shot."

She likes the idea of fathers who are interested in sports sitting down with the newspaper and telling their kids which teams hail from which cities, and where they're playing. "This is geography, you see," she says. "Or you can work out batting averages, or yards taken — this is math."

Others, like author-educator Nancy Larrick, suggest that children enjoy tours of their own home, looking for plumbing, fuse boxes, heat ducts, insulation, and different building materials.

Another way to see these things is to wander with your child around a construction site — with permission, of course.

Other ideas for outings:

- Best buys. Dr. Rich suggests giving a child a certain amount of money and strolling through the supermarket, "building lunch from the ground up. Look for the best price on soup cans, lunch meat, whatever, and let the youngster keep track of how much is being spent. Then take him home, and the two of you cook it and eat it together."

- Gift buying. Shopping for family gifts takes some thinking, too. It demands that a child focus his thoughts on the wants and wishes of others. This isn't always easy. How many times has Grandpa received a toy car or bubble gum? Dad can show his offspring how to come up with appropriate presents — within a budget.

- Street smarts. This is a 1980s variant on the walk around the block. Help your child identify safe places to go in an emergency — such as the library, neighbors you know, the school. Dr. Rich suggests that you follow this up by having the child draw them on a map.

- Bus/subway ride. This doesn't have to be to any place in particular, though it might be fun to go somewhere you rarely take children. "The point to using the bus is that you can talk," Dr. Rich says.

- Greenhouse. This is pleasant on a rainy day. You could pick out a small plot for the child's room or garden, "which, if you're sharing custody, acts as an anchor for the child in your new home," says Dr. Rich.

- Chicken or fish hatchery, or a beekeeper's. A zoo with a twist. You'll probably need to call ahead.

- Cold storage. Butchers sometimes have these places and, with a phone call in advance, may be willing to let your child in for a vivid lesson in temperature.

- Highway or railroad cuts, to see "the layers of rock and tilting of these layers," says Dr. Larrick. A good time to talk about geology, fossils, erosion, transportation, and whatever's on your mind.

- Nearly any store. "Just stand there watching the people work," Dr. Rich suggests. Whether it's paint mixing in the hardware store, dough kneading at the bakery, meat cutting at the butcher, or flower arranging at the florists, work performed is intrinsically fascinating to watch.

- A windmill or water mill. To talk about energy resources.

- Food markets. Especially small ethnic ones with foods normally foreign to your tongue. Try to figure out what foods you're looking at, where they come from, how they're fixed, and how they might taste.

- Airport, bus terminal, railway station, shipyard. Fun places to watch the hustle and bustle of people on the go.

- Civil or criminal court. These usually meet during the week. Call ahead and ask what's on the docket for the day you plan to come. This is a great place to get into those value issues you want to teach your children — justice, human rights, equality.

- Picnics. A blanket, paper plates, cold drinks, and food from the supermarket deli counter make a quick pick-up picnic. Throw in a Frisbee or a ball and bat, and you're set for the afternoon. The bonus here is that green grass and blue skies offer a perfect backdrop for talk times.

- For more ideas, Mr. Shepard and Mr. Goldman advise, "think about the times when you made [your children] happy and you had a good feeling about it. What happened at those times? What were the surroundings? Were other people around?"

"Chances are," they continue, "that your kids responded best when you did something uncomplicated."

Children enjoy tours of their own home, looking for plumbing, fuse boxes, and heat ducts.

Batter up: Baseball helps shape nation

By Susan D. Bliss
Smithsonian News Service

"YANKEE PAYROLL TO HIT RECORD 500 Gs." So read the headline in The Sporting News, Jan. 8, 1958, confirming the New York ball club's status as aristocrats in pinstripes. Today, with some baseball players earning a couple of million dollars a year, much about the national sport has changed.

Lou Gehrig, a key figure in the great New York Yankees team of 1927, still holds the record, with 23, for career home runs hit with the bases loaded.

What endures is an unofficial corps of devoted fans that has included such diverse personalities as Gen. Douglas MacArthur, poet Marianne Moore and columnist George Will.

"Baseball is a very satisfying game," says Carl Scheele, curator of community life at the National Museum of American History in Washington, D.C. "It depends on a number of opposing couplets - strategy and action, simplicity and intricacy, distance and close encounters, individual performance and teamwork."

Sportswriter Al Stump, author of My Life in Baseball: The True Record, as told by baseball immortal Ty Cobb, and more recently, Baseball Access, a guide for TV baseball viewers, agrees that baseball is the quintessentially American game. "It just fits the American psyche perfectly," Stump comments. "We like to hit things with sticks, we like to run and we like to catch."

From the first trade of a baseball card to the last bet in the World Series office pool, many fans become fascinated with the game's statistics or, as Stump puts it, the intriguing minutiae of baseball. This appetite, whetted no doubt by the proliferation of personal computers, has launched at least one annual, Bill James' Baseball Abstracts, as well as networks of organized fans, such as the 5,500-member Society for American Baseball Research. Society founder L. Robert Davids says of the late Charles Martin Conlon, a baseball devotee who became the first modern professional sports photographer. Some 60 prints made from The Sporting News collection of glass plate negatives, shot by Conlon between 1905-1935, are being shown for the first time in an exhibition organized by the National Portrait Gallery in Washington, D.C., and sent on the road by the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service.

Though not a baseball fan, Will Stapp, the Portrait Gallery curator who helped to select the photographs, recognizes the images to be "very, very unusual."

"Before Conlon's time," Stapp says, "sports photography was usually posed and formal. Conlon's work is so striking because he was a baseball fan. He numbered players and managers among his friends and thereby was able to gain access to the playing field, something no other photographer had been able to do." He started out as an amateur but was hired shortly after the turn of the century to work for Spalding's Official Baseball Guide and a New York newspaper, the Telegram.

"In modern sports photography," Stapp explains, "you go out with two to six cameras around your neck, turn on the motor drive and capture a number of frames in rapid sequence to make sure you get the right shot."

But Conlon was limited to taking no more pictures than the number of large and bulky glass plates he could carry in his pockets - not more than six, Stapp suggests. "He had to be very deliberate, but he also had to work by intuition. Conlon knew his players - the way they moved - and he had a remarkable facility for being able to take the photo at exactly the right moment."

One of his most dramatic shots is a picture of Ty Cobb sliding into New York Highlander third baseman Jimmy Austin. Conlon shot with such precision that Cobb, Austin, umpire, base and every clod of flying dirt are clearly visible.

Paul MacFarlane, historian for The Sporting News, calls it "the greatest baseball picture in the world - motif number one" and explains how Conlon got it: "When he went down to the ballpark to cover for his paper, he would always stay at third base, because all the tight plays come there. So this day Cobb was in action. Conlon saw the steal coming and set his camera up. But when Cobb hit the dirt, one of the clods hit Conlon right in the head. He didn't think he had the picture."

"At the end of the week, he'd look at all the pictures he shot for the Telegram, develop them and throw the negatives away. He saw that picture come up and he told me he said, 'Dammit, I did shoot it.' It was so perfect when he got the light on it that he took a shot of the print - because the original negative was broken. So the picture in the exhibition is the one that he made - it's the most remarkable save of an historic thing you can imagine - beautiful."

George Herman "Babe" Ruth, the idol of millions, renewed public faith in baseball following the Black Sox scandal of 1919.

The feisty St. Louis Cardinals of the early 1930s, known as "The Gas House Gang" for their rowdy, competitive ways, were led by (from left): coach Mike Gonzalez, manager Frankie Frisch and coach Buzzy Wares.

One of Conlon's portraits shows an uncharacteristically placid Leo Durocher, the brilliant and often biligerent manager who led the Brooklyn Dodgers and, later, the Dodgers' cross-town rivals, the New York Giants, to National League pennants. Durocher, who once held the record for being tossed out of the game for bad behavior, quipped recently when visiting the Portrait Gallery, "I never had a problem with an umpire. I was always in the clubhouse."

Other than photographs, baseball aficionados revere the sport by saving trading cards, autographed baseballs, scorecards and equipment. Sometimes, these treasures wind up in museums, as fans and players make pitches for baseball's immortality.

Curators at the Smithsonian have been collecting sports artifacts since the late 1800s; later, it was decided that baseball, as the national game, was the most important sport for the Smithsonian, as the national museum, to document. The collection had a boost in the 1970s, as staff prepared a major show on American popular culture, including entertainment and many sports. Building "A Nation of Nations" was "almost a family event," says Ellen Roney Hughes, the historian who, with Scheele, has the task of building the popular culture collections. Nephews and sons of staff members were called upon to give their baseball and football cards, Little League uniforms and other objects.

Among the fans who have watched baseball evolve, there are those who insist that many of the changes in the game have been unfortunate. "The romance of baseball is pretty much dead," Al Stump says. "And money is what killed it."

Baseball researcher Davids agrees that large salaries and long contracts can discourage first-rate competition by top players, but believes that the sport is actually better played today than ever. "In the old days, it was a kind of rough game, and a lot of those players were not so well-educated or well-rounded."

"Also, they didn't let black players - and only very few Latinos - play, and that wasn't good for baseball," Davids says.

"One of our members did a computer survey taking into account today's improved playing environment and better-conditioned players. He came up with the judgment that, if Ty Cobb were playing today, he'd bat only about .290." Generally, though, Davids acknowledges that the great players of the past - Cobb, Ruth, Honus Wagner - would still be stars, "because they were tremendously talented."

In Durocher's words, "There's only five things you can do to be great - you can hit, you can hit with power, you can run, steal and throw." And today's fans, just as the fans of yesterday, celebrate these talents through an ever-growing lineup of heroes.
